From 'A Pocketful Of Dreams' To Their Own Herd

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — "All we had was a pocketful of dreams and our education," said Marie Sipler. "We went to the bank and said, 'This is what we want to do.'"

In two-and-a-half years "we went from weekend farming to owning 50 cows to owning 100 cows," said Marie.

The couple was recently awarded the Young Farm and Rancher Achievement Award from the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau.

The couple received $500 from Dodge truck, use of a tractor for a year from Kubota, and a trip to Orlando, Fla. to compete in national competition.

The Farm Bureau has been an important part of the Sipler's involvement with agriculture. Oscar is enthusiastic about his recent election to the Lancaster County Farm Bureau board of directors and getting younger farmers involved with the Farm Bureau.

"It's nice to have an organization recognize younger people for their achievement. We've been farming two and a half years and we've been recognized," said Oscar.

The couple, both 25, has been members of the Farm Bureau for two years and attended leadership workshops sponsored by the organization.

During the recent Farm Bureau conference in Hershey, Marie was a finalist in the Young Farmers and Ranchers discussion meet. The four finalists displayed their communication skills and grasp of agriculture by presenting their ideas on agricultural topics.

The couple has also participated in the Young Dairy Leaders Institute (YDLI), sponsored by the Holstein Foundation. In addition Oscar and Marie are active members of the Brown Swiss Association.

Marie has been involved with the Brown Swiss Junior Association and judges several dairy shows a year in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and New Jersey.

Expansion

The Sipler family, which includes daughter Josephine, 18 months, has been in transition much of the past two-and-a-half years.

"It's always been our ambition to farm," said Marie. "When we discussed expansion with our loan officer, he suggested the Zimmerman facility. It was a really fast transition. From the time we first came to check out (the Zimmerman

Major New Farm Equipment Feature At Harrisburg Farm Show

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In what Farm Show officials are calling a "first" for the industry, a new farm equipment display will be featured at the 2001 Pennsylvania Farm Show. Sponsored by the major farm equipment manufacturers, the display will be in the center of the main exhibit hall in the Farm Show Complex with members of FFA chapters on hand each day to give presentations about each piece of equipment.

"I am pleased to announce that all of the major farm equipment manufacturers will be represented at the 2001 Pennsylvania Farm Show," said Dennis Grumbine, executive director. "The Farm Show represents the best of Pennsylvania Agriculture, and serves as a true showcase of the state's largest industry as well as a place for farmers to purchase their agriculture needs. In addition, the general public gets to experience agriculture hands on."

"A committee of farm equipment dealers has been working on this new feature for the past 12 months and we think we have put together an exhibit that will feature the cutting edge of the high-market products in the farm equipment industry," Grumbine said. "The exhibit is set squarely in the middle of our main exhibition area and we are pleased with what will be a first in Farm Show history."

In addition to regular exhibit space, the new special farm equipment display will feature farm machinery that is used for soil preparation, planting and seeding, grain harvesting, silage harvesting, tractors, and material handling.

FFA members will be on hand at the display to give presentations about the equipment and help sales representatives answer questions about the featured equipment. The participating FFA chapters are West Snyder FFA, Newport FFA, Manheim Central FFA, Upper Dauphin FFA, Mifflinburg FFA, McConellsburg FFA, Solanco FFA, Dover Area FFA, Greenwood FFA, Middleburg FFA, and Cumberland Valley FFA. Presentations will begin at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. each day.

The machinery dealers who are participating in this special event are Binkley & Hurst Brothers Inc., Hooper Inc., M. M. Weaver & Sons, Triple H Farms, Valley Ag & Turf, and Wenger's of Myerstown.

The Pennsylvania Farm Show will be held from January 6 to 11, 2001, with one of the largest indoor agricultural events in America. The Farm Show complex has 16 acres under roof, and more than $300,000 in premiums will be offered this year to competitive exhibits in all types of farm livestock, youth, commodity and horticulture exhibits. More than 500,000 people usually attend the five-day annual event.

Patricia and James Hostetter, McVeytown, accepted a farm-city award for co-hosting the Third Grade Ag tour. The Hostetters operate a dairy farm.

Raymond and Susan Bratton received a farm-city award for helping host the Third Grade Ag Tour. The Brattons operate a Charolais beef farm.

MCVEYTOWN (Mifflin Co.)

- Two Mifflin County farm families received farm-city awards for hosting 480 third graders during the 2000 Third Grade Ag Tour, sponsored by the Mifflin County Farm Bureau. Raymond and Susan Bratton and James and Pat Hostetter, all of McVeytown, accepted their awards at the recent Farm-City Banquet with a few humorous comments.

"We received so many thank-you notes, I felt I needed to send them some," said Susan Bratton.

"We learned a lot from the third grade kids," replied her husband, Raymond Bratton.

"No one was there at his farm the day before the tour. The day of the tour, everyone rolled in and seemed to know what they were doing. It took a lot of effort on the part of panners, workshop leaders, and tour guides. It's a good program, and I hope it keeps going at someone else's farm!" James Hostetter said.

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.

Report Supplied By USDA

Midweek trucklot buying activity was extremely light as dealers eyed the market with caution and continued to limit purchases to most immediate needs. Offerings of boneless-skinless breasts were fully adequate to ample, and bone-in breasts were readily available. Dark meat items were more than sufficient, particularly leg quarters and drumsticks. Wing movement remained good keeping product well cleared to closely balanced. Movement into retail and distributive channels was slow and disappointing. The market tone was fully steady on wings, cautiously steady to instances weak on the balance.

ICE PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES, CENTS PER POUND. ITEM CURRENT NEGOTIATED TRADING BREAST - B/S 110 TENDERLOINS 150-155 BREAST - WITH RIBS 52-53 BREAST - LINE RUN 52 LEGS 35-36 LEG QUARTERS (BULK) 23-24

North Atlantic Shell Egg Market

Atlanta, GA

Report Supplied By USDA

Prices remained unchanged in all areas. The market tone was steady. Demand was moderate to good and was best where featured. Supplies were adequate to closely balanced. In the Central region, breaking stock supplies were adequate to instances tight for the fairly good to good demand. In the Eastern region, breaking stock offerings were usually adequate and demand for additional eggs was fair. Light type hens were sufficient for current processing schedules.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer ATLANTA, GA.

Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole bird was generally noted as disappointingly slow to seasonally no better than fair and typical of the post-thanksgiving period. Seller offerings were fully sufficient. Live supplies were at least moderate; weights were light to heavy, mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 55 to 69 cents. Trade sentiment was about steady. In the parts complex, Breast and Leg cuts were fully adequate to ample and excess supplies were usually slow to clear. Wings were adequate to tight.

Majority prices were unchanged to lower on whole, with majority trading on balance of items unchanged when compared to a week earlier. The market tone was usually steady on yolks, and still mixed on whites and unsettled on whole. Trading was limited and with buyers cautiously watching further market developments. Supplies were usually adequate for current needs. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending November 18, 2000 were 1 % less than last week, but 5 % more than a year ago.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO

Report Supplied By USDA

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Grain and Soybeans bids were mostly lower due to slower export demand and some profit taking on the Board. Wheat were 1 to 5 cents lower. Corn mostly 2 to 5 lower except Kansas City 11 cents lower. Sorghum 5 cents lower. Soybeans 1 to 3 cents lower. Wheat bids were slightly lower as Soft Winter Wheat condition improves. Fair overnight export trade for wheat. Corn and Soybeans fell moderately lower also due to lack of fresh export news.

HALCYON DAYS

It should come as no surprise that "Halcyon" is among the most popular boat names, gracing the sterns of everything from the smallest day-sailer to the largest yacht. The name comes from a Greek legend about the daughter of Aeolus, god of the winds, who was so upset at the loss of her husband in a shipwreck that she threw herself into the sea. According to lore, she was transformed into a kingfisher, called alkyon or halkyon by the Greeks. Around the time of the winter solstice, the bird built its floating nest of sticks and bones upon the seas, and the wind was charmed into a period of tranquility for about two weeks, so that the eggs could be safely incubated. This peaceful time, known as Halcyon Days, is what we wish you throughout the holidays.

We shall get no rest 'till we get to sea.

TIP OF THE WEEK

If coffee has burned onto the bottom of a pot, cover the burnt area with salt, let it sit, then rinse well.

CREAMED FISH

3 tablespoons chopped onion
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1-1/2 cups flaked cooked fish (salmon, tuna, mackerel)
1/3 cup grated Cheddar salt and pepper, to taste biscuits, toast, or corn bread

Sauté onion in butter, and then blend in flour. Add milk slowly, stirring until thickened. Add fish and cheese, then season. Serve over warm biscuits or toast, or with corn bread.

Makes 4 servings.

Generational Continuance

We often find farmland preservation to be a politically correct misnomer for open space preservation. Not so with the Lancaster Farmland Trust. What a delight to see a private organization without the threat of government interference really work to preserve the generational continuance of these many beautiful homesteads in Lancaster County.

As you know, behind every beautiful farm scene the human side of farming reaches back to the inheritance received from parents, grandparents, and great grandparents. And from these roots, an eternal hope propels the heart-felt desire to see children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren take up the creative work known as farming.

While the unequaled success of saving 117 farms since 1988 is magnificent, the professional efforts in land transfer and support of agriculture in general on behalf of these farm families is the heart and soul of the Lancaster Farmland Trust. The goal here is not just to preserve farmland, but to support good stewardship of the land and encourage a thriving agricultural economy. No wonder this Trust is the envy of other programs in the nation and also the most copied.

And while you would think preserving farmland is an agricultural pursuit, the truly informed realize that our farm heritage enriches the lives of all citizens. That's why many urban and city people are members of and support the Lancaster Farmland Trust.

As the Trust's Harvest Appeal is under way, it would be a good time to make an investment in the noble effort to save the farms of Lancaster County.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

Lawn Power Equipment

As the lawn and garden season ends, one important job remains before winter sets in, noted Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent.

All power equipment should be prepared for winter storage. A few important things to do before winter include:

- First, drain the gasoline from the tank and carburetor. Gasoline, which remains in the tank and carburetor, will cause a varnish-like substance to develop. This deposit often causes expensive repairs next season. There are products on the market, which may be added to gasoline, which prevents this buildup without draining the gasoline. You may want to try this approach if draining the gasoline creates a problem.
- Second, change the oil before winter. Oil may become acidic through use and, when left in the engine, will cause corrosion.

- Third, clean the air filter and replace it if needed.
- Fourth, clean and replace the spark plug.
- Fifth, clean the top and underside of the deck.
- Sixth, check for missing or broken parts and order them now.
- Seventh, have repairs that you cannot do yourself done during the winter in anticipation of the spring rush.

To Control Yard And Garden Diseases

Plan to use warm weather spells this winter to reduce the chance of plant disease problems in your yard next year.

According to Dr. Tim Elkner, Lancaster County extension horticultural agent, fungi have specialized structures that allow them to survive the winter and cause most of the infectious diseases that occur on landscape and garden plants. As warmer spring temperatures occur, these fungi seek the assistance of wind and rain to find their plant host and continue their life cycle.

Sanitation or cleaning up is important to break this overwintering disease cycle. Sanitation consists of activities aimed at removing or reducing disease organisms. Practices such as tilling, removing infected leaves, and cutting out sick or dead branches will help reduce the amount of disease that may develop.

Sanitation involves removing stems and leaves before new growth appears in the spring. Sanitation measures are not only important for flowering perennials, but also are important for woody plants such as trees and shrubs. It is often easiest to prune deciduous woody plants after leaves have fallen when symptoms are more visible.

Remember, when pruning diseased portions of plants, always make cuts in healthy tissue below the infected area to ensure that all the diseased tissue has been removed.

To Check Corn Harvest Losses

Reducing harvesting losses is one sure way to improve profits, reminds Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent.

Putting the highest percentage of the crop in the bin should be the number one management objective at harvest. Many factors affect field losses including crop not ready to harvest, preharvest losses, improper combine adjustment, improper ground speed, improper operator practice, or combine leakage. Most of these factors may be corrected if losses are identified during harvest.

After the harvest is over, the only check that may be done is to determine if the harvesting job was a good one. Now is the time to take a walk through some of your cornfields to determine what the average number of kernels per square foot is. This should be determined across the entire width of one combine pass at several locations in the field. On average, 1.5 kernels per square foot will equal one bushel loss per acre. Once the decision is made that field losses were too high, it is important to remember to do something about it next year.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "Worse than not being able to see is being able to see and have no vision."

GOD'S CHRISTMAS LIST?

Background Scripture:
Luke 1:15-25; 3:1-18.
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 40:1-5.

Did it ever occur to you that God wants something from you for Christmas? That is a sobering thought, isn't it? So what do you give to a person who has everything?

But maybe God doesn't have everything from us that he wants. Maybe he, too, has a Christmas list and there is something on it that you could give to him. I think I've found that "list" in Luke 3. John the Baptist copied it down for us. So what can we give God for Christmas?

John's first suggestion is that God wants us to repent so that we "Prepare the way of the Lord." (3:4). Perhaps that comes as a shock because many of us don't think of ourselves as needing repentance — not right now, anyway. We live pretty respectable lives, keep out of trouble with the law, and don't have any enemies to speak of. Repentance is for sinners and that doesn't really apply to us.

That must have been what people thought when they heard John's challenge. They were decent, God-fearing people. While they might have realized they were not perfect, neither did they think of themselves as sinners. Surely, he was not speaking to them!

Brood Of Vipers!
John, however, made his challenge to everyone in the crowd. And he is pretty outspoken: "You brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come." (3:7). Notice he didn't say that this applied to just some of the crowd. These words were addressed to all.

I had a high school classmate who would startle us with a sudden confrontation and a demand to know: "Are you saved?" One of my friends replied indignantly: "Of course I am. I'm a Lutheran."

"But that wasn't what I asked," the other replied.

I have often thought about both the question asked and the reply. There was a certain logic in the answer. Being Lutheran, he thought that salvation from sin was part of the package deal. And I can also understand the other student's reply. The confession God requires of us is not the faith of a particular church, but a confession of sin.

As John spells it out: "... Do not begin to say to yourselves, 'We have Abraham (John Calvin, Menno Simons, John Wesley, and Martin Luther) as our father...'"

The deadliest sins, said Thomas Carlyle, are "the consciousness of no sin." St. Augustine said that "All sin is a kind of lying." If when confronted by God we are not burdened with the weight of our sins, we are deceiving ourselves first and then the Lord.

In the Biblical sense, sin is not concerned with respectability, but with our own failures to live the lives God calls us to. Others may be unaware of our moral failures, but we must not be. Someone has suggested that our sense of sin is in proportion to our nearness to God. If we are not conscious of our sins, perhaps we are just not close enough to God.

something in your life of which to repent, read further: "He who has two coats, let him share with him who has none; and he who has food, let him do likewise." (3:10,11). Even if I live the most exemplary life and there is no one to condemn me for anything, still there are those to whom I have failed to do as God commands.

You don't have to travel far to find people who are ill-clothed and homeless, hungry children, derelicts, and the downtrodden. If you have two coats and enough to eat, is it not sin to pass them by?

John also tells tax collectors not to collect more than is due and soldiers to "Rob no one by violence or false accusations..." John is speaking not only to tax collectors and soldiers, but all of us. In our daily work, God wants us to avoid lying, cheating, and deception. Martin Luther says that "The recognition of sin is the beginning of salvation."

The reason many of us find nothing of which to repent is that we have allowed ourselves to become rent and unmindful of it in our very midst.

But, as Carlyle said, "the greatest security against sin is to be shocked at its presence." Maybe the best gift we could give to the Lord this Christmas is a renewed sense of shock and shame for the sin that is within our sight.

Training Seed Savers In Plant Characterization and Regeneration

GENEVA, N.Y. — The Plant Genetic Resources Unit (PGRU) of the USDA-ARS at Geneva, New York, hosted a two-day workshop, September 18-19, 2000, for training seed savers in heirloom plant characterization and regeneration.

"The major goals of this workshop were to provide participants from organic farmer and seed-saving non-governmental organizations (NGOs) the skills to describe varieties using the descriptor lists available from the National Plant Germplasm System and elsewhere and to multiply heirloom varieties showing potential in a manner that preserves their identity and provides sufficient high quality seed," said Larry Robertson, USDA vegetable crop curator.

"The workshop aimed to train trainers from the organizations involved so that they could act as mentors in training other members of their organizations in the demonstrated methodologies."

Seed saver enthusiasts are interested in using heirloom varieties in the PGRU seed repository for production on their farms. Workshop organizers provided the links and basic knowledge to access germplasm and characterize it. After selecting the plants they would like to use, the seed savers have the basic skills needed to regenerate them in a manner that preserves their uniqueness.

Through informed laypersons, the PGRU hopes to get more germplasm out of the vault and into farmer fields, providing for on-farm conservation of important and useful heirloom varieties. Heirloom enthusiasts are expected to play an important role in turning PGRU collections into living plants that all can experience and enjoy.

"We provided a pool of enthusiastic seed savers with the basic training needed to get started characterizing and regenerating heirlooms in a manner that meets minimal standards," said Robertson.

Even though the participants still have much to learn, he said they made a "good start" in taking a role in preserving our common heritage of the genetic resources treasure maintained in the genebanks. "We have added a strong, enthusiastic group to our pool of stakeholders," he said, "and we hope to strengthen links with them in future activities."

Lectures covered general concepts of descriptors followed by hands-on experience at the experimental farm in characterizing cabbage, onion and tomato accessions. The lectures covered the minimal descriptor lists used for cabbage, onion and tomato and also gave an introduction to the various types of descriptors used, their format, and the importance of heritability and environmental interaction in characterization and evaluation.

Participants were trained to score for such characters as onion bulb shape, tomato fruit shape and other characters. The minimal descriptor lists for all three crops were covered, scoring demonstrated, and the participants trained to score. Imaging of tomato and onion bulb shapes was demonstrated and discussed at the Wellington Farm, in Geneva. The importance of photographic documentation was demonstrated. Participants also learned from a lecture and demonstration of computerizing characterization data in a format that is easily exchangeable, plus brief coverage of the on-line Genetic Resources Information Network (GRIN) and how to access it via the Internet.

Lectures also covered important issues in small-scale regeneration of heirlooms including plant breeding systems, plant habits, use of pollinators, and IPM. This was followed by demonstrations at the Wellington

Farm of protocols used in planting varieties for regeneration using cages for pollination, how bee hives are used for pollination, and a demonstration of seed threshing, processing and cleaning equipment used for seed production of tomatoes, Brassica crops and onion. The day ended with coverage of the importance of proper drying, storage, and testing germination and other seed quality traits.

BEAVER SPRINGS (Snyder Co.) — In October, the West Snyder FFA Chapter hosted the SUN Area FFA land judging and forestry career development events.

Placing first and earning a blue ribbon in the forestry CDE was Derek Fetterolf from West Snyder FFA Chapter.

Other West Snyder FFA members who participated included James Wright and Brandon Herman, who were awarded red ribbons for their efforts.

Pheadra Wray and Laura Knepp won white ribbons.

In the forestry CDE, students had to take a written test on their general knowledge of forestry, identify various trees and forestry equipment, and make recommendations to improve timber stands.

In the land judging CDE, members had to determine the physical characteristics of the soil, such as depth and texture and then use that information to recommend an approved land use. This event was conducted at four sites.

Ohio Regional Agronomy Meetings

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Managing Phytophthora infections in soybean fields is among the hot production topics that will be addressed at Ohio State University's regional agronomy meetings, Dec. 18-Jan. 18, at sites around the state.

Last spring, Ohio growers replanted 20-30 percent of their soybeans because of phytophthora damping off, said OSU plant pathologist Anne Dorrance, one of the speakers for the meetings. Farmers noticed that soybean varieties that were once effective against the disease weren't doing the job anymore.

"There's been a change in the populations of Phytophthora pathogens," Dorrance said. "Phytophthora has been identified in a large number of fields planted in soybeans with the 1K-resistant gene."

Dorrance and plant pathologist Pat Lipps will present findings from Ohio State University research funded by checkoff dollars from the Ohio Soybean Council. The solutions include selecting a variety with a resistance (Rps) gene different from past plantings. The selected variety should also have partial resistance (tolerance) to all Phytophthora races. Also consider tillage, if allowed under the farm's conservation plan, as well as fungicide seed treatments.

Meetings coordinator Greg LaBarge, OSU extension agent for Fulton County, said other speakers were selected based on the problems farmers faced in their local areas. A few of the wide array of topics include soil nutrient management, strip tillage and conservation tillage, new pest problems and their management.

Preregistration is $15 for individuals registering seven days before the meeting date. Registration at the door is $20, space permitting. The registration includes meal and a copy of the proceedings that includes summaries of speakers' research findings.

Those attending will also be eligible for commercial and private pesticide applicator credits as well as certified crop adviser credits.

For more information or to preregister, call the contact numbers for meeting sites: Dec. 18, Fremont, PK's Banquet Hall (419) 334-6340; Dec. 19, Paulding, OSU Extension Center (419) 399-8225; Dec. 19, Celina, Wright State University Lake Campus (419) 586-2179; Dec. 20, Wilmot, Amish Door Restaurant (330) 497-1611; Dec. 21, Williamsfield, Community Center (440) 576-9008; Jan. 16, Mount Vernon, Dan Emmett Conference Center (740) 397-0401; Jan. 16, Plain City, Der Dutchman Restaurant (937) 644-8117; and Jan. 18, Piketon, OSU Extension Center (740) 947-2121.

Farm Management

Could Farming Grow On You?

Ginger S. Myers
Agricultural Development

The advantages of farm life are among the reasons individuals operate part-time farm or natural resource enterprises. Farm enterprises can provide open space and learning experiences for the entire family.

If the family chooses the right enterprise, it can also provide supplemental income. The physical labor required by a farm enterprise can also have a therapeutic effect on those who also work off the farm.

One of the first considerations when selecting a farming or natural resource based enterprise is to evaluate your personal and physical resources. Your personal resources include availability of labor, yours or other family members', the capital investment required, and your level of experience or expertise. Your physical resources include your land, water resources, buildings, and equipment.

Recognize the pitfalls of the enterprise you select and then establish some basic goals for your operation. Livestock requires daily care and may restrict family traveling. Crops can be planted with meticulous care only to wither and die for lack of rain. The two most important questions are, "Why do I want this enterprise?" and "What do I expect to receive from this enterprise?"

Understanding your reasons for having a farming experience will help determine the type and extent of the farming enterprise you choose.

One of the most important concerns when considering a farm enterprise is the market and the ability to sell what you produce. Potential producers need to take responsibility for carefully evaluating the market potential for their products.

Market supply and demand, market stability, and the availability and location of the nearest market are also important.

Marketing begins when the first seed hits the ground or the first hoof hits the pasture. A consumer-oriented approach to marketing is essential to the success of the enterprise.

Association Sets Awards Banquet

PALMYRA (Lebanon Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association has planned its annual awards banquet Wednesday, Dec. 13, at 6:15 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, Grantville. A reception will be from 5:45 p.m.-6:15 p.m.

For the third year, the awards banquet will be held in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders Conference. The Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association has chosen this partnership to encourage its members and all Pennsylvania dairymen to lend their full support and endorsement to the Dairy Stakeholders mission.

Since 1976, the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association has annually awarded its Charles E. Cowan Memorial Award to a Pennsylvania dairyman who demonstrates the ability to maintain a high level of production in his home operation, and who also shows leadership contributing to the improvement and promotion of the Pennsylvania dairy industry. Other honorees to be named will be the recipients of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association's 2001 Pennsylvania Distinguished Dairy Women and Extension Awards.

The evening program will include speaker, Rick Smith,

Dairyalea Cooperative Inc. His speech is titled "Looking Into Our Future."

The board of directors of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association invites all dairy producers and industry persons to join in the evening awards banquet and to also learn from the numerous speakers who will be addressing the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders Conference Dec. 13-14.

Tickets may be reserved by contacting David R. Smith, Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association, 440 Plaza Drive, Palmyra, PA 17078, (717) 838-3283. Ticket price is $20 and reservations must be made by Dec. 8.

Today, WITF-TV Offers A Taste Of Pennsylvania Dutch Goodness

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — WITF-TV, the region's public television station, celebrates the foods that Central Pennsylvania is known for with Pennsylvania Dutch Cooking: Wonderful Good, a new WITF production.

From chicken potpie to Schnitz and Knepp (Apples and Dumplings), cooks from throughout the region share their recipes and memories of some of the most popular Pennsylvania Dutch comfort foods. This one-hour program premieres today, Dec. 2, at 2 p.m. and is rebroadcast at 3:30 p.m.

Viewers will step into the kitchen of five local Pennsylvania Dutch cooks as they pass down their traditions from one generation to the next.

Marie Steinmetz, a costumed interpreter at the Landis Valley Museum and lifelong resident of Kleinfeltersville in Lebanon County, teaches her daughter how to make a Dutch County favorite, chicken corn soup.

Mary Landis of New Cumberland joins her daughter and granddaughter in making an almost forgotten Pennsylvania Dutch winter dish, Schnitz and Knepp or Apples and Dumplings.

Arlene Delp of Dallastown passes along her 30 years of experience in making pies for York's Central Market to show her granddaughter and a friend how to make lemon sponge pie. Each cook recalls the joy of taking the time to prepare a good meal and eating together as a family.

The program also features the original Pennsylvania Dutch cooking traditions preserved and presented at the Landis Valley Museum in Lancaster. A living history village, the Landis Valley Museum interprets Pennsylvania

German rural life, including the open hearth-cooking program taught by foodways specialist Tom Martin. The museum published a cookbook this year focusing on regional cuisine titled "Pennsylvania German Foods and Traditions."

Pennsylvania Dutch Cooking: Wonderful Good takes an in-depth look at a beloved regional cuisine. The program will also be rebroadcast on WITF-TV Sunday, Dec. 10 at 2 p.m.

Workshops Offered For Small-Scale Entrepreneurs, Food Processors

GENEVA, N.Y. — The Northeast Center for Food Entrepreneurship (NECFE) is holding a series of hands-on workshops for food manufacturers, small scale processors of specialty foods, farmers interested in value-added processing and anyone interested in starting a small-scale food manufacturing business.

The first workshop, entitled "Good Manufacturing Practices for the Production of Shelf-Stable Acid, Acidified (Pickled) and Dehydrated Foods," was offered at the Food Research Laboratory at Cornell University's New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, in Geneva, N.Y., Oct. 6. It provided current and future small processors with the basic elements needed to understand the main processing steps, critical control points, and record-keeping to safely manufacture specialty food products for the marketplace.

Future workshops include "Fermented Sausage and Jerky," in Ithaca, N.Y., Dec. 8; "Next-Level Entrepreneurship Training for Small and Specialty Food Producers," Jan. 9-10, Jan. 23-24, and Feb. 20-21 in Geneva, N.Y.; "A Taste of Specialty Foods," presented at the 2001 Farmers' Direct Marketing Conference in Owego, N.Y., on February 5; and "Food Safety for the Entrepreneur," offered March 22 in Burlington, Vt.

For more information or to preregister for the workshops, contact Judy Anderson, (315) 787-2273, FAX 315-787-2284 or e-mail her at jla2@cornell.edu. Registration is limited to 40 people. The fee is $50.

Gelbvieh Unveils SmartCross™ Program

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — During its recent 2001 National Convention in Louisville, Ky., the American Gelbvieh Association unveiled its most aggressive marketing campaign to date. This campaign centers on the SmartCross™ Program, a new crossbreeding plan developed by the American Gelbvieh Association.

"In today's beef industry, we saw a need for a simple crossbreeding plan that would get more producers into the profit center," says Don Schiefelbein, AGA Executive Director. "SmartCross™ provides commercial producers with a plan that will help them make money."

At the heart of SmartCross™ is the philosophy that Continental Cross British cattle are the most profitable in the cow-calf, feeder and packer segments. Research has shown cattle with 50 percent Continental genetics and 50 percent British are feed efficient and produce quality carcasses. SmartCross™ provides producers with a plan to get them to the 50-50 blend of Continental and British.

The three breeds included are Gelbvieh, Balancers™, and Angus (Red or Black). SmartCross™ shows producers what breed of bull to use on various types of cows in order to get the profit center. For example, if a commercial producer has a highly British cowherd, it is recommended to use a purebred Gelbvieh bull. If a producer has a highly Continental cowherd, SmartCross™ recommends using a purebred Angus or Red Angus or a Balancer™ bull to bring the progeny back to the 50-50 blend of genetics.

Balancers™ are registered seedstock composed of registered purebred Gelbvieh and Angus or Red Angus on both sides of the pedigree. Balancers™ can quickly bring a mixed breed cowherd to the profit center.

An eight-page handbook is available free to producers and explains the SmartCross™ Program in detail. For your copy, call (303) 465-2333 or email info@gelbvieh.org.

"SmartCross™ is right for the industry and will bring profit to all segments," says Schiefelbein. "The American Gelbvieh Association has always been at the leading edge of the beef industry when it comes to commercially-focused programs. This is information that will work for all beef producers."

York 4-H Dairy Clubs Conduct Banquet

BAIR (York Co.) — York County 4-H Dairy Clubs recently conducted their annual recognition banquet here at the York County 4-H Center.

Outstanding members in each of the three dairy clubs were recognized. The winners for the Central Dairy club were rookie, Amanda Thompson; junior, Kelly Johnson; intermediate, Cory Thompson; and senior, Angie Beshore.

The Southwest Club recognized Sadye Anderson as out-

Airville Milk and Money Dairy Club winners were rookie, Kyle Miller; junior, Josh Miller; intermediate, Lisa Jones; and senior, Raechel Kilgore.

Following the club awards the LoBianco family presented the LoBianco Scholarship in memory of Justin LoBianco, killed in a tragic farm accident. The scholarship winners were Hope Long from Airville and Donald (D.C.) Sunday from Daltastown. The scholarship allows the young person to buy a breeding animal or semen to breed an existing animal in order to improve the genetic base of the animals they may already have.

Barbara Richardson was recognized as the sweepstakes showmanship winner at the 2000 York County Dairy roundup. Roundup breed champions and reserve champions were also recognized.

Angie Beshore, New Cumberland, was named the 2000 Outstanding 4-H Dairy Club member in York County. Cory Thompson, Wellsville, was first runner up and Raechel Kilgore, Airville, was named second runner up for the award.

The York County Dairy judging team was recognized by coaches Paul Knight and Jeff Rutz. Members of the team were Christi Knight, Airville; Raechel Kilgore, Airville; and Justin Hall, Delta. The team recently returned from the national judging contest in Louisville, Ky., where they placed third.

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Conservation District approved a policy initiative that will provide a 25 percent reduction of review fees charged for projects that utilize preferred best management practices (BMPs) for erosion control and stormwater management.

Developers who agree to include best management practices such as cluster-development and open spaces, infiltration best management practices, porous paving or grass paver systems, biofiltration swales and practices, improved riparian corridor practices, and roof top gardens will have the erosion and sediment plan review fee reduced by 25 percent.

Dan Greig, manager of the conservation district said, "The conservation district decided that this incentive could help accomplish several of our goals."

The district wants to encourage the use of these preferred BMPs, provide actual field demonstrations of the BMPs' functioning, and provide education of the proper usage of the BMPs.

Most of the preferred BMPs are tools recommended in Chester County's landscapes, the Draft Water Resources Management Plan, and Pennsylvania Growing Smarter Landuse Initiative.

Robert Lange, chairman of the conservation district, said, "It's time for us to look at stormwater as a natural resource, to utilize it to replenish our groundwater and not treat it a problem.

The Chester County Conservation District believes that this is the first time a BMP incentive program has started in Pennsylvania and perhaps even in the U.S.

The district is also working to develop a Self-Guided Best Management Practice Tour for municipal officials.

West Snyder FFA Members Win Championship Awards At Beaver Fair

West Snyder FFA members also were awarded the champion showmanship titles in each major species.

The livestock shows began with the sheep show. West Snyder FFA member Hannah Etzler exhibited grand champion market lamb and won the champion sheep showmanship award. FFA members Spencer Etzler won the title on middleweight champion with this market lamb and Amanda Shaffer earned the reserve middleweight champion title.

In the swine show, West Snyder FFA member Roger Wilt earned grand champion market hog. Derek Fetterolf placed first in the intermediate age division for swine showmanship and advanced to win the supreme champion swine showman title.

Jodi Fetterolf placed first in her market hog classes and advanced to earn the titles of lightweight champion and reserve middleweight champion. Michele Fetterolf placed first with both her market hogs and Derek Fetterolf placed first and second with his hogs.

Brandon Herman placed third in two market hog classes in the lightweight division. Hannah Etzler placed second in two market hog classes in the middleweight division. Heather Hollenbach earned third place with her middleweight market hog and second place with her heavyweight hog. Heather also won the senior division in the swine showmanship competi-

FFA members also operated the ice cream and baked potato stand at the fair. Co-chaired by Lance Herman and Tiffany Esbenschade, the concession stand made an additional $210 profit over last year. The FFA stand sold ice cream, baked potatoes, soda, and candy. The West Snyder FFA members sold 96 gallons of ice cream, 1,160 baked potatoes, 130 cases of soda, and dozens of candy bars.

Completely Revised Silo Fires Book Available

ITHACA, N.Y. — Fires in silos and hay mows can be controlled and extinguished before a disastrous loss occurs if they are promptly discovered and the right actions are taken.

"Extinguishing Fires in Silos and Hay Mows" ($7 plus S&H/sales tax, 40 pages, November 2000), a completely revised and expanded publication from NRAES (Natural Resource, Agriculture, and Engineering Service), explains the causes of silo and hay mow fires and teaches firefighters how to safely and effectively extinguish them.

The book starts out with a review of silo types. The approach to fighting a silo fire depends on whether the silo is conventional, oxygen-limiting, or modified oxygen-limiting, so determining silo type is a crucial step. Line drawings are included to clearly illustrate the differences among the three silo types. Discussions about modified oxygen-limiting silos are new in this revision.

Most of the book focuses on the different techniques required to locate and extinguish fires in different silo types. Factors to consider at the fire scene (such as safety, time, exposure hazards, and toxic gases) and other important concerns (such as structural damage, firespread, and using industrial gases to extinguish a fire) are addressed as well. Fires in oxygen-limiting silos are particularly hazardous, and the book carefully reviews essential safety precautions required by these structures. Many of the book's 21 figures illustrate methods for locating fires in silos and proper extinguishing techniques.

The final chapter, new in this revision, describes the causes of and procedures for extinguishing fires in hay and straw mows. The chapter alerts farmers and firefighters to common hazards of hay mow fires, including burned-out cavities, sudden flare-ups, and toxic gas exposure. Two appendixes list proper hay- and silage-making methods, which are important in preventing fires in these materials.

"Extinguishing Fires in Silos and Hay Mows," NRAES-18, is available for $7 per copy plus shipping and handling from NRAES, Cooperative Extension, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Ithaca, N.Y. 14853-5701. Shipping and handling for one or two copies is $3.75 within the conventional U.S. New York residents, add eight percent sales tax (calculated on both the cost of publications and the shipping and handling charges).

For more information or a free copy of our publications catalog, contact NRAES by phone at (607) 255-7654, by fax at (607) 254-8770, or by e-mail at nraes@cornell.edu. To learn more about NRAES, browse through the entire catalog and order books on-line at www.nraes.org.

2000 National Conference Speakers Encourage Producers To Focus On End Product

Nearly 400 Angus enthusiasts from 30 states, Canada and Australia gathered Sept. 25-27 in Lexington, Ky., for the 2000 National Angus Conference and Tour.

The annual conference, "Angus-Setting the Pace for the Beef Industry," followed a day-and-a-half tour of area Angus herds located in the Bluegrass State.

Keynote speaker Gary Smith, distinguished professor in the department of animal science at Colorado State University in Fort Collins, emphasized that producers must be consumer focused rather than customer focused.

"Can you satisfy the people who are going to sit down and eat your product?" Smith asked those in attendance.

Consumers have six key concerns, according to Smith, that the beef industry must keep in mind: safety, healthiness, affordability, preparation ease, convenience and taste. Smith identified Certified Angus Beef (CAB), LLC, as a branded-beef program that has experienced continued success, even in times of decreased beef demand. He said that brand identity would lead to brand loyalty and eventually brand equity in the beef business.

"Just imagine a beef industry in which the targets are agreed upon in the beginning and based upon what customers want and what consumers will purchase and eat and enjoy," Smith said. "Just imagine a part of the foundation of a new beef industry has progressively greater reliance on Angus genetics by the cow-calf producers of North America."

John Crouch, director of performance programs for the American Angus Association, agreed that we are in the food business, not the cattle business, and he discussed the use of expected progeny differences (EPDs) to improve the end product.

Crouch compared livestock improvement to planning a trip. First, the industry must know where it is. Second, the industry needs to know where it wants to go. And third, they must plot a route. The American Angus Association's Sire Evaluation Report is one tool many have used and will continue to use in order to improve their product.

"Due to the low genetic relationship between marbling and other carcass traits, we can increase marbling, rib eye area and percent retail product, and decrease external fat with the same sires," Crouch said. "Our job is to identify the sires."

Mike Kasten, a commercial cattle producer from Millersville, Mo., said he selected Angus cattle for his 450-head operation based on several criteria. He wanted to produce higher quality cattle that will make a profit. He also was looking for cows that can produce on grass and wanted a wide selection of higher quality genetics with which to work. During the past three years, 20 percent of his calf-crop has met CAB carcass specifications.

"In this breed we can have it all," Kasten said. "Our data would show that with the right bull selection you can have both high-grading and high-gaining traits in your cattle."

The future of the industry, Kasten said, is dependent on the seed stock producers and the commercial producers working together to produce genetics to fit the demands of the consumers. He suggests that the producers become part of marketing alliances, work closely with one another to obtain profitable genetics, and facilitate the recreational producer to participate in breeding decisions that result in a desirable end product.

Consumers are still passionate about beef according to Ray Ramsey, director of the Michigan Livestock Exchange Marketing Division of Southern States Cooperative Inc., Richmond, Va.

"When is the last time you heard someone say, 'that was a great piece of chicken I ate last night?'" he asked. He added that now is the time to take advantage of the better economic climate to regain lost market share for beef.

It is key that all segments of the industry understand each other. For continued success in the future of the beef industry, Ramsey encouraged increased use of source verification and alternative feeder-calf marketing options such as genetically-similar sales, Internet marketing and producer-feeder contractual agreements.

Mark Gardiner, president of Gardiner Angus Ranch, Inc., Ashland, Kan., said that cattle producers have more opportunities in the beef business today than they ever have. The producers must take advantage of resources like the American Angus Association's performance database and Sire Evaluation Report.

Quincy Air Compressor Freeze-out!
Hot Deals! Cold Savings! Dec. 1st to 22nd only!

Quality features performing quality functions

Valve design lets the Quincy QR-25 run efficiently at lower temperatures, eliminates need for discharge line check valves.

Loadless starting for lower energy costs and less wear on motor.

Intake unloaders reduce work and horsepower when demand is low, thus lowering operating costs and extending life. They also unload the intercooler for the lowest unloaded horsepower possible.

Safe-Q-Lubrication permits the compressor to start load-free until oil pressure rises high enough to close the hydraulic unloader.

Dual oil filtration, first at the oil pick-up tube, second through the spin-on oil filter.

Other standard features

- Two-stage capability: 200 psig at continuous operation
- Rebuildable components
- Low maintenance requirements
- Manually reversible oil pump

HOLIDAYSBURG (Blair Co.) — The Blair County 4-H/FFA Livestock Clubs held their annual banquet in October at the Morrison Cove Memorial Park.

The buyers and sponsors at the 4-H/FFA Show and Sale in Aug. 14 and 15 were also invited. Ken Weaver was recognized for purchasing at every sale for 40 years. The awards were presented to the members of the lamb, swine, and beef clubs.

High scorer winners of the Beef Club were senior, Barb Hileman; junior, Wayne Bigelow; and first year, Olivia Biddle.

All of the beef members received a check for 2 cents per pound gain on their animal. The yearly award was presented by Dennis Dively and Lynn Lovell of Central Bank.

High scorer winners of the Cove Swine Club were senior, Curtis Eastep; junior, Daniel Eastep; first year, and Jeremy Mock.

High scorer winners of the Bellwood Swine Club were senior, Amber Noye; junior, Wesley Noye; and first year, Bobby Decker.

Award winners of the Lamb Chops were as follows:

High Scorer Award: senior, first, Elizabeth Biddle, and second, Sarah Dell; junior, first, Chris Biddle, and second, Julie Dell; and first year, first, Jeremy Mock, and second, Wade Harclerode.

Shepherd's Contest (a quiz on all quizzes from eight meetings): senior, first, Rita Wise-Favinger, and second, Elizabeth Biddle; junior, first, Chris Biddle, and second, Julie Dell; and first year, first, Wade Pearson, and second, Miranda Lynn.

Weight Gain: first, Jordan Greaser (68-pounds), and second, Dalton Downey (66-pounds).

Ewe Award (points earned by the members): first, Dalton Downey, and second, Jeremy Mock.

Members with 400+ points — Chris Biddle, Elizabeth Biddle, Olivia Biddle, Alyssa Brumbaugh, Julie Dell, Sarah Dell, Jordan Greaser, Wade Har-clerode, Miranda Lynn, Wade Pearson, Lila Wise-Favinger, and Rita Wise-Favinger.

Guess of Weight: first, Wade Pearson and Angie Greaser and second, Josh Eastep.

Perfect Attendance (eight meetings): Elizabeth Biddle (five years), Olivia Biddle (two years), Julie Dell (four years), Sarah Dell (six years), Alyssa Brumbaugh (one year), Dalton Dowey (one year), Wade Harclerode (one year), Miranda Lynn (one year), and Jeremy Mock (one year).

A gold bracelet was awarded to Elizabeth Biddle for five years perfect attendance (42 meetings), plus extra activities including parades, cooking contest, Skillathons, judging contest, dressing contest, and other activities.

farm) until the time we moved in was about two months. It was the best move we ever made."

Paul and Brenda Zimmerman, who own the farm, plus their three children live on the other side of the farmhouse.

The Siplers expanded their dairy herd and moved from Berks to Lancaster County this summer. They are milking 100 head and have 112 heifers. Nearly one-half of the dairy cows are Brown Swiss and the rest are Holsteins. Oscar intends to increase the number of Brown Swiss in the herd and also plans to market the animals which are registered.

Marie has had Brown Swiss cows since she was 10 years old.

"Close to half are Brown Swiss. With the milk market today going on components, we have much higher butterfat, protein, and solids with the Swiss," she said.

This year Holstein heifers will become recipients to Brown Swiss eggs to increase the Swiss percentage in the herd. The couple also plans to flush their own Brown Swiss heifers.

"In general, Swiss add quality to our herd," said Oscar, who believes in a "constant upgrade" of his herd.

Previously the couple housed their animals on several facilities, including Marie's parents' farm.

"When her parents sold out, we thought, 'we're either going to do it on our own or sell out,'" said Oscar. The dream of a farm then became a reality as the couple began the own 50-animal dairy in Shoemakersville, Berks County.

When their loan officer suggested the couple look into renting from the Zimmermans, the Siplers jumped at the chance to expand.

The couple, who enjoys the Zimmerman family and the facility, will be at the farm for at least three years. The farm will hold approximately 140 head.

"The way I feel, people have to get bigger to be more efficient," he said. The couple is hoping to have a herd numbering 250-300 some day.

"Our next expansion will depend on efficiency and profitability," said Marie.

When they considered expansion, the Siplers factored lower milk prices into their figuring. "If we can figure on what the low might be, then it will definitely work at higher milk prices," he said.

Transition

The Siplers added Zimmerman's cows and heifers to their own, bringing their herd numbers from 50 to milking 100 head. While Zimmerman's cows adjusted to new management, the Sipler herd adjusted to the move from a tiestall to a freestall barn. Blending the two herds, each with their own dominant cows, has also been a challenge that time is slowly erasing.

The couple experienced a high cull rate the first six months, a trend which Oscar believes is starting to reverse. "The cows couldn't adjust. We also had a few expenses we hadn't expected, like a new TMR mixer and feed bins to upgrade the facility."

"We've turned the corner now," said Oscar.

A recent feed room fire also delivered an unexpected twist to dairying for the Siplers. "We were unluckily lucky," said Oscar, who believes that although the fire was a stressful experience, the event forced them to replace equipment, so "things ought to be a little better," he said.

A friend told the couple "don't get too big too fast," advice the couple found to be true.

"Fighting the little fires can take away from fighting a bigger fire," said Oscar. "You might work with a cow that should just be culled and neglect the next one. Don't underestimate how much work you may need the first couple months."

Transition means being open to change and ready for risks. "I kind of like change," said Oscar. "When you start to get comfortable in a situation, it's time to change because you don't want to get in a rut. I'm always thinking about the next move to be prepared."

"I had it in my mind I wanted to get to a certain size, and I had it worked out on paper, so I was ready. You can't be scared to change or try new things, to take that next step. Otherwise we wouldn't be doing what we're doing. Young people have to take that risk."

A Growing Love Of Agriculture

Dairy farming is new to Oscar, who grew up on a large grain business.

A love of agriculture, however, was an inborn trait for him. "My dad always said you're born with it," he said. "I grew up on a farm where everyone worked a job and came home to farm. I always thought, 'wouldn't it be nice to be a full-time farmer?'"

Oscar decided he knew grain but not enough about animal agriculture.

"I figured to be in agriculture I had to know about livestock," said Oscar. His father, who had worked at dairy farms, piqued Oscar's interest in the business. Later his job for the Department of Agriculture at the dairy facility in Beltsville, Md., helped him learn firsthand about dairying. A year working for Pennfield Feeds gave Oscar a solid background in nutrition.

The Sipler family includes daughter Josephine, 18 months. "It's always been our ambition to farm," said Marie.

Oscar enjoys a friendly working relationship with the family's cows.

Oscar also does all his own artificial insemination work on the herd to reduce costs and improve efficiency.

Education, Backing Important

The couple, both originally from Maryland, met at the University of Maryland. Oscar graduated with a degree in animal science and Marie graduated with a degree in agriculture business.

Marie believes their education is key in gaining their chance at farming.

"Without our college degrees, we wouldn't have gotten our first loan," said Marie.

Her ag-related job is also a product of her college education. Although she works as an area sales manager for New Holland Credit, she also helps with the milking in the evening and genetic selection on weekends for the breeding of the cows.

Consequently Oscar is responsible for taking care of their 18-month old daughter during weekdays.

"I used to pull her around in the wagon with blankets everywhere I went," said Oscar.

The Siplers' long-term goals include more herd expansion and ownership of their own farm. "I can't say we've made it. We're on a path. I always wanted to farm. I'm living my dream. Too many times people say 'I wish I'd have done it...' If I fail, at least I tried."

Not only education but also support from family, friends, and business partners has combined to give the Siplers their chance at farming. "We had people who believed in us," said Marie. For example, "The Zimmermans didn't know us, but they gave us a chance."

The couple doesn't mind building the herd "from scratch."

"You never know, we may be starting a legacy," said Marie.

The Sipler's herd consists of an almost half-and-half mix of Holsteins and Brown Swiss.

Correct feet and legs and longevity make the Brown Swiss a top choice for the Siplers, according to Oscar.

Suggestions For Achieving Success With Systematic Breeding Programs

There are a variety of programs available to dairy producers for synchronizing estrus and ovulation.

Some systems require heat detection during specific days following hormone injections while the Presynch and Ovsynch programs are based upon timed inseminations. However, there are some requirements for success that are common to all systems.

1. Cows must be cycling in order that hormonal protocols properly synchronize follicular development, regress the corpus luteum and induce ovulation. Priority should be given to minimizing negative energy balance and loss of body condition during early lactation. Body condition should be monitored on a routine basis.

2. A voluntary waiting period (VWP) should be established and used as a critical control point for the entire reproductive management program.

Research clearly shows the benefit of using a prostaglandin injections prior to the VWP as a set-up shot for the Targeted Breeding programs or the Presynch program. The purpose of these injections is to induce cattle into a stage of the estrous cycle when they are most likely to respond to the initial synchronization injection.

3. A calendar and record system should be developed so that injections, heat detection, inseminations and pregnancy exams are performed on days specified by the protocol and appropriate personnel should be available to perform these tasks correctly and in a timely manner. Standard operating procedures (SOP) for the program should be posted and understood by everyone involved with implementing the program.

4. Personnel must adhere to the sequence and timing of injections as prescribed by the protocol for the specific system being used. These systems were developed following extensive field research.

5. Depending upon the system being used, heat detection must be intensified on the days when the cows are likely to exhibit heat. This means more frequent heat detection and use of heat detection aids.

6. Even though the Ovsynch and Presynch programs are designed for timed insemination during a specific interval following the last injection, this does not imply that heat detection is no longer necessary. To maximize the effectiveness of any system, the post-breeding heat detection rate (detection of return heats) must be high.

7. Pregnancy examinations must be scheduled routinely so that open cows are identified as early as possible and scheduled back into a synchronization program.

8. Successful reproductive management depends on team work. Herd managers should consult with the veterinarian and AI personnel so that everyone is working toward the same objective. There isn't any hormonal protocol that will overcome anestrus, poor uterine health, inadequate vaccination, sloppy insemination technique and environmentally stressed cows.

Maryland And Vermont Dairy Producers Team Up To Donate Cheese To Needy Families

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Hundreds of needy Maryland families will enjoy premium cheese on Thanksgiving Day thanks to the generosity of an equal number of dairy farm families in Maryland and Vermont.

The Maryland Dairy Industry Association teamed up with Cabot Creamery in Cabot, Vermont to donate nearly 500-pounds of premium cheese, including such varieties as Monterey Jack, Cheddar, Colby Jack, and Extra Sharp. The cheese was donated to Carroll County Food Sunday, a local food bank which serves families in central Maryland through outlets in Westminster, Eldersburg, and Taneytown.

More than 200 Maryland dairy farm families belong to the Maryland Dairy Industry Association (MDIA). Cabot Creamery is a dairy farmer-owned cooperative in northern Vermont, and markets its members' cheese throughout Maryland.

"This donation is a wonderful opportunity for two family dairy farm organizations to provide needy families with a nutritious dairy product," says MDIA president Myron L. Wilhide. Wilhide and his family produce milk on Key De Blue Farms near Detour in Carroll County.

Five Critical Control Points To A Smooth Transition

Periparturient diseases such as milk fever, retained placenta, ketosis, hepatic lipidosis, and left displaced abomasum (LDA) are the scourge of the dairy industry. Economic loss from decreased milk production is only the tip of the proverbial iceberg in evaluating total disease losses. Recent Cornell data estimated total losses from lost and discarded milk, veterinary fees, increased labor, pharmaceuticals and premature culling to be $145 per case of ketosis, $340 for a LDA case, $334 per case of milk fever, and $285 per case for retained placenta. Unfortunately, periparturient diseases generally do not occur as single entities.

Epidemiologic studies have shown periparturient health disorders not to be totally independent events, but rather a complex of interrelated disorders. If a cow succumbs to one disease process she has a much higher risk of having one or more other periparturient diseases. For example, a cow that had milk fever had a greater risk of also having dystocia, retained placenta, LDA, ketosis, and mastitis. It is doubtful that this is new information to any dairy producer or veterinary practitioner.

Clearly the premise that if a cow makes it through the transition period free of disease problems, one can expect a fairly productive lactation period with high hopes of efficient reproductive performance.

These relationships underscore the critical importance of periparturient disease prevention as a goal for improving productive efficiency.

In appreciating what a high producing cow needs to metabolically accomplish during the transition period, one has to wonder why there are not more problems with periparturient diseases. To prevent periparturient disease and increase the potential for successful reproduction, there are five critical control points during the transition period that need to be addressed. These five areas of concern are: 1.

minimizing immune system dysfunction. The following segments in this series will discuss specific issues to be addressed with each of the five critical control points and present suggested good nutritional practices that can be employed in an effort to prevent periparturient disease problems in your herd.

A Rural Enhancement Model For Our Times

Bringing a biobased product from laboratory research, field trials, and testing to commercialization involves a many-player partnership.

Because strategic alliances are focusing their resources on them, two agricultural communities in Colorado and Michigan are benefiting. The Alliance involves Colorado State University, Michigan State University, Agro Management Group Company (AGRO), USDA, the United Soybean Board, county extension agents, and farmers willing to try a new biobased crop venture.

The project involves transferring promising university research that has resulted in a viable biobased product to an agricultural community that is willing to organize to produce that new product.

Innovative farmers and ranchers willing to invest in a new biobased venture working with partners from industry, state universities, government programs, and local economic development entities are the keys to success.

The project involves manufacturing AMG 2000, a high-performance, environmentally friendly motor oil containing 17 different vegetable oils like soybean, canola and sunflower, as well as vegetable and animal waxes like meadowfoam and lanolin. Ingredients are for the most part locally grown, processed, and sold through two farmer-owned corporations — creating jobs and leaving profits in local communities.

Four AGRO company representatives, including Jim Lambert, AGRO Chief Executive Officer (CEO), and Duane Johnson, a Colorado State University research scientist, have collaborated since 1992 on value-added possibilities for canola oil. Johnson's work set world yield records on improved canola production.

At AGRO's request, Johnson expanded his work on toasted canola seed oil to reformulate biodegradable bicycle chain oil, and by 1995 a small engine and car lubricant.

United Soybean Board and farmer checkoff funds provided initial funding for lab research and product advertising. AGRO obtained equity capital for research certification testing on the car motor oil to get the product commercialized through USDA's AARC. For their investment AARC required that the technology developed be transferred to a rural community to better its economy.

After seven years of experimentation and an investment of $2.5 million, AGRO patented AMG 2000. Production has started at a Michigan farmer-owned processing facility, and a similar Colorado plant will soon make the product. AGRO has hired a firm to establish industry testing standards for vegetable-derived motor oil.

"An industry partner is called a champion. We need champions to move promising research ideas out of universities and link new processing technologies with communities to produce new products. Without champions, no matter how remarkable the research and without the ability to make market penetration, the research will sit on a shelf," says Lambert.

The Michigan cooperative and processing plant started when a group of soybean and canola farmers asked county extension agent Jim LeCureux in Bad Axe, MI, to find a value-added opportunity for their crops.

The new vegetable-oil-based motor oil under development by AGRO was identified. In 1998, AGRO chose Ubly, MI, as the first farming community to involve as partners to produce AMG 2000.

To help set up Michigan's first farmer-owned contract cooperative, Thumb Oilseed Producers Cooperative, LeCureux, with a farmer steering committee, held 13 meetings with small farmers from six counties. Michigan State University gave him full support, even allowing LeCureux to serve as interim CEO until the plant was up and running.

Researchers at Michigan State University and Iowa State University provided some chemical expertise for the product. The Dakotas Cooperative Development Center gave technical assistance. Legal, financial, and marketing help was hired. LeCureux formed other co-ops and met with multi-state farmer alliances to build more economic opportunities for farmers in his region.

"You have to have a committed industry partner to make this work," says LeCureux, "and you need to work through a

Top Ten Keys To Building A Profitable Dairy Business

Bradley J. Hilty
Sr. Ext. Associate
Penn State Dairy Alliance

Dairy businesses are affected by both local and global events, many of which cannot be controlled. Future prices indicate a severe challenge to dairy profits in the year to come.

By focusing on ten key management practices dairymen can build a profitable business and insure they will survive the tough times and prosper when times are good. Those ten keys are listed below, in reverse order.

10. Manage Your Expenses

Some experts may argue that managing expenses should be at the top of the list. However, in most instances the costs of inputs are beyond our control, as is the price of milk. A good benchmark to follow is to manage expenses (less interest and depreciation) to 65 percent of income.

If an operation is not achieving this benchmark, evaluate the areas where improvement is needed to attain this benchmark. Evaluate the cost-benefit ratio of each purchase. Spend money on productive expenses and minimize non-productive expenses. Manage inventories to minimize carrying charges and control overhead expenses.

9. Emphasize Your Strengths

Dairy producers don't have to be a jack-of-all-trades to manage a profitable dairy. In fact, the challenge for producers is to identify and emphasize their strengths. Labor and/or capital constraints often lead to the "do-it-all" approach to managing a business.

Identifying the jobs that the dairy producer enjoys doing and, therefore, will do well, can lighten the workload and enable the dairyman to focus on the aspects of the business that will make the most money.

8. Enterprise Analysis

Identify the various profit centers of the business. Determine which are profitable and to what degree. What changes should be made to improve the profitability of the money losers and what investment would those changes require?

Would that money, if invested in the more profitable enterprises of the business, generate a higher return? Are there alternatives that would allow the producer to out-source those enterprises that are not making money or are providing minimal returns for the resources required by those enterprises?

7. Make Wise Investments

Evaluate each investment and why it is important to the business. Analyze every investment made to determine the return it will generate for the business. What is the payback period? Prioritize investments on the basis of their perspective payback periods; one to two years first, then three to five years. Larger investments (major expansions) should have a payback period of less than 10 years (seven-eight years preferably).

Implement A

Management Team

Consider implementing a management team, consisting of the key advisors of the dairy operation. This team can help to develop strategies that will help improve the profitability of the business. They can help monitor trends in key production indicators and help to prevent small problems from turning into major catastrophes.

Team members may include: the veterinarian, nutritionist, agronomist, dairy consultant, lender, accountant or financial advisor, dairy field person and/or extension personnel.

5. Information Management: Know Your Cost of Production

Use the records that are available to make management decisions. Evaluate the accounting system. If it does not allow the producer to easily calculate the cost of production, and perform enterprise analysis, consider changing to a system that does. A good accounting system will help spot weaknesses in the production system.

Compare production costs and figures for other key indicators to those of the top ten percent of profitable dairies. The business should also have a good production record system in place. Production records, if used correctly, will indicate where efforts should be focused to improve profitability.

4. Cow Comfort

Evaluate the facilities in terms of cow comfort. Are the majority of animals lying down when not eating? Do animals have trouble getting in and out of stalls? Are bedding levels adequate? Are cows waiting in the holding area too long? Is the ventilation system providing a good source of high quality air? Do the cows walk around comfortably without slipping?

Poor cow comfort levels can lead to poor profitability, through reduced production, poor reproductive performance, higher cull rates and higher feed costs. Blood flow to the udder increases significantly when cows are lying down. This promotes more efficient utilization of the nutrients the cow has ingested. Higher cull rates will significantly reduce profitability, by increasing overhead costs.

3. Maximize Forage Quality/Feed A Balanced Ration

From the field to the feed bunk, this is a key area where many dairies can make improvements to their bottom line. Poor forage quality can cost a 100-cow dairy from $20,000 to over $100,000 per year in increased feed costs and lost production. Manage forage supplies to minimize drastic changes in the forage makeup of the animal's ration. Constantly changing forages or feeding forage that has not completely fermented will lead to reduced production and lower profits.

Latest research is indicating corn silage may not reach a stable state until two-three months after harvest. If storage facilities prevent the producer from feeding fully fermented forage throughout the year, he should consider putting up a bag or two for use during next year's harvest period. Forage quality should be monitored frequently and the ration balanced to ensure the cows are getting adequate nutrients to match their production level, without over feeding nutrients.

Control The Controllables: (Production, Efficiency And Marketing)

There are many factors of the dairy industry that producers cannot control. Concentrating on those areas will only drain a producer of the energy needed to address the areas they can control. Although producers have little control over the price they receive for their product, controlling some key items can contribute to higher prices. Controlling mastitis in the herd reduces somatic cell counts, which can lead to considerable bonuses with some of the milk quality incentives now offered.

Ensuring that the ration is properly balanced not only leads to better production and a more cost-effective feeding program, it helps to maintain milk components (fat and protein), which contribute to higher prices. Addressing many of the items previously discussed can lead to higher production levels, which improve profitability.

Make an effort to become more informed about the marketing side of the business. Developing a good marketing strategy, using the risk management tools available, is another way to build a profitable operation. In doing so you begin to take more control of your operation.

1. Develop A Strategic Business Plan

The topic of this discussion is "Building A Profitable Dairy." No dairy producer would build a new dairy facility without having a set of blueprints. Yet many may not have taken the time to develop a set of blueprints for building a profitable dairy business.

Developing a plan forces the producer to look into the future and visualize where they would like to be in five to 10 years. A plan will help producers determine where their business is today and what they must do to reach the goals they have set for the business.

This is a time-consuming process, but the effort put into it will pay big dividends in the future. Enlisting the help of a professional can expedite the process, and will provide additional insight as to where the operation is now and how to achieve the goals.

In conclusion, dairymen will always be faced with adversities of one sort or another. However, by addressing the key items listed above, dairymen can take major steps to building profitable dairy businesses and ensure that they will survive and thrive well into the future.

USDA Seeks Public Input On Government's Role In Biotech Marketing, Announces New Biotech Research

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman recently asked the public to provide comments on what, if any, additional steps USDA should take to facilitate the marketing of biotech crops and help segregate these products from non-biotech products.

"In order to protect our domestic and foreign markets and ensure public confidence, it's essential that we improve our ability to identify and track genetically modified farm products," said Glickman in remarks to USDA's Advisory Committee on Agricultural Biotechnology. "We want to provide a forum where the best ideas on this subject can be presented."

A notice to be published in the Federal Register invites public comment on how USDA should help facilitate the marketing of grains, oilseeds, fruits, vegetables and nuts in today's marketplace that includes biotech and non-biotech crops.

Some of the questions USDA seeks comment on include:

- Should USDA be involved in accrediting, reviewing or certifying the performance of food company identity-preserved systems?

- Should USDA establish biotech or non-biotech crop definitions as part of the current U.S. quality grades and standards?

- Should USDA expand its accreditation of laboratories to detect biotech grains and oilseeds to other biotech crops?

Glickman also said that USDA's Grain Inspection Packers and Stockyards Administration (GIPSA) will open a new biotechnology accreditation lab in Kansas City, Mo., in January to help standardize the identification of biotechnology-derived grains. The facility will review, upon request and for a fee, laboratories testing grain for the presence of biotechnology-derived grain, and will accredit those laboratories that meet performance standards. In addition, the lab will enable GIPSA to evaluate test kits against the manufacturer's performance specifications for determining the presences of biotechnology-derived grains in bulk grain to ensure that these tests are accurate and reliable.

Glickman said USDA would move ahead with several biotechnology research projects that the committee recommended earlier:

- One project will evaluate several classes of the next generation of genetically transgenic plants — ornamental grasses and plantation-grown trees — with a focus on their potential impact on the environment and agriculture.

- Another project is a thorough evaluation of the use of sterility systems in controlling the spread of genetically altered organisms.

- The third project is a study, in cooperation with the Food and Drug Administration, on USDA's role in evaluating food safety issues that might be raised by biotechnology, including how potential health risks may influence USDA's responsibilities and procedures for ensuring the safety of meat and poultry products.

Glickman created USDA's Advisory Committee on Agricultural Biotechnology last year to advise him on a broad range of issues relating to agricultural biotechnology and to bring together the many diverse voices and opinions regarding this technology. The committee is composed of a cross-section of individuals from government, academia, agribusinesses, ethicists, environmental and consumer groups.

In a further step to seek input from experts, Glickman last year also asked the National Academy of Sciences to form a Standing Committee on Biotechnology to review USDA's biotech approval process and evaluate ways in which it might be strengthened.

USDA is one of three federal agencies, along with the Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, primarily responsible for regulating biotechnology in the United States.

U.S. Presents Market Access Proposal At The WTO

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. recently presented a proposal at the World Trade Organization (WTO) agriculture negotiations in Geneva that is designed to open foreign markets for U.S. agricultural exports.

The proposal to reform tariff rate quotas (TRQs) focuses on one element of the comprehensive U.S. WTO proposal submitted in June.

TRQs are import policies that allow a specified quantity of imports of a product at a relatively low tariff, and subject all other imports of that product to a higher tariff.

"Improving market access opportunities for American farmers and ranchers is a top U.S. priority in the WTO," said U.S. Trade Representative Charlene Barshefsky. "WTO members need to bring down high tariffs on agricultural products and reduce the disparities across countries. TRQs can provide access opportunities while we phase in tariff reductions, and today we are proposing that WTO negotiations result in expanded market access opportunities and protection against unjustifiably burdensome requirements on importers and exporters."

"When trade is free and fair, American farmers and ranchers compete and win," said Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman. "This proposal will help ensure fair market access and thus could create new or expanded opportunities for U.S. farmers who export corn, rice, wheat, dairy products, poultry, pork and other farm products."

The U.S. TRQ proposal calls for the following four-part approach to reform:

- Develop additional disciplines for TRQs that ensure importers do not administer TRQs to bar trade.

- Reduce in-quota duties based on the historical performance of the quantity of product imported at the lower in-quota tariff; the lower the fill rate, the deeper the cut.

- Cut tariffs using an approach that reduces disparities across countries and progressively increases TRQ quantities.

- Establishing trigger mechanisms to lower in-quota duties when TRQ fill is low.

The U.S. proposal — the only comprehensive proposal before the WTO — submitted in June addresses every major issue in further liberalizing agricultural trade, from market access to export competition and domestic support. It calls for substantial reductions, or elimination, of tariffs, expansion of tariff-rate quotas, elimination of export subsidies, disciplines on the use of export restrictions on agricultural products, disciplines on state trading enterprises, simplification of rules applying to domestic support, and establishment of a ceiling on trade-distorting support that applies equally to all countries.

Farm Bureau Regrets EU Targeting Of U.S. Agricultural Products

WASHINGTON, D.C. — American Farm Bureau Federation President Bob Stallman has expressed regret that European officials recently released a list of American exports to Europe that are targeted for possible retaliation in the Foreign Sales Corporation (FSC) trade dispute.

Legislation was finalized in the U.S. this week to revise tax laws that provided off-shore taxation rebates on certain exports that the WTO ruled were an illegal export subsidy. A ruling to determine whether recent changes to U.S. tax law comply with WTO rules is expected within the next 90 days.

"It is unfortunate that Europe is taking steps that prejudice the United States' compliance on the FSC case," Stallman said. "Our administration and Congress have worked very hard to come into compliance with the World Trade Organization's FSC ruling. The same cannot be said of Europe on the beef and banana cases. Clearly, the release of this list is an attempt by Europe to deflect their own inability to live up to WTO rulings."

The recent request by the EU seeks WTO approval to authorize up to $4 billion in trade sanctions. The list released by the European Commission itemized 46 categories of products, of which half are food and agricultural items. Those include such things as livestock, meat and dairy products, fruit, vegetables, nuts, sugar, fish, wool, cotton, furs, hides, skins, wood, paper and other pulp products.

Stallman said, "Targeting U.S. agriculture to bear the brunt of Europe's revenge is an outrage. The United States has been an open trading partner with Europe when it comes to agricultural trade."

"However, our exports to Europe are consistently restricted due to allegations that lack scientific merit and a series of unfair trade practices. Now, Europe is positioning itself to further restrain U.S. agricultural exports to its market."

Pa. State 4-H Horse Show Winners

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The 41st Annual Pennsylvania State 4-H Horse Show was conducted Oct. 27-29 at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

A total of 982 youth and 1,044 horses competed in 43 performance and 63 production classes after qualifying at local and district shows.

Events included halter, showmanship, equitation, pleasure, jumping, driving, reining, western riding, timed events and a therapeutic riding division for riders with disabilities.

Twenty-four youth took part in the second Annual Pennsylvania State 4-H Model Horse Show, which gives 4-H members the chance to learn and perfect the hobby of collecting and showing model horses. The model horse program is ideal for members who may not be able to own and show live horses.

Highlights were the recognition ceremony, including presentation of the 2000 Pennsylvania 4-H Horse Program Outstanding Member awards, the Equine Educational Exhibit awards, and the Good Housekeeping Award. Other activities included educational and commercial exhibits, and a dance for exhibitors and 4-H members.

Julia Polka of Westmoreland County received the 4-H Horse Program Outstanding Member Award, which recognizes leadership ability, project work, and participation in local, county, district, and state activities. She received a saddle donated by Smucker's Harness Shop of Narvon.

Four finalists received halters and leads donated by Wengers Saddlery of York Springs. The finalists were Jaclyn Belczyk of Eric County, Tabitha Eimerbrink of York County, Arlea May of Warren County, and Kate Semmens of Montgomery County.

For the eighth year, county 4-H clubs displayed their horsemanship knowledge through equine educational exhibits. The 29 exhibits were judged on educational content and equine facts. York County was named grand champion. A trophy donated by Hoy's Trophies and Awards of Export will reside in the county for one year. Blair County was named reserve champion. Wyoming County earned third place.

Blair County was named Good Housekeeping grand champion. A trophy, also donated by Hoy's Trophies and Awards, will reside in the county for one year. Berks County was named reserve champion. Fayette County earned third place.

Bob Calvert, Penn State cooperative extension agent in Mercer County for 34 years, and Patty Kelly, volunteer leader in Westmoreland County for 27 years, received service awards.

More than 7,000 youth are enrolled in 4-H horse projects in Pennsylvania.

Alfalfa Information

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Las Vegas is the site for the 2000 National Alfalfa Symposium Dec. 10-12.

Members of the alfalfa industry from growers to industry experts will gather to hear the latest research and ideas about alfalfa production.

Sponsored by the California Alfalfa Workgroup and the Alfalfa Council, the program is designed to help anyone involved in alfalfa production become more efficient and profitable.

"Our plans for the 2000 program are to thoroughly study alfalfa production practices and concerns from a western perspective. We've designed a program to address these needs and address not only western grower concerns, but all regions of the U.S. as well," said Dr. Dan Putnam, extension forage specialist with the University of California-Davis and program chair for the symposium.

"National Alfalfa Symposia have a long history of covering all aspects of this legume from production practices to environmental concerns to marketing with some of the best researchers and company experts in the industry."

As the foremost meeting on alfalfa in the United States, the program committee expects nearly 600 growers, industry representatives, and marketers to attend. The meeting at the Las Vegas Hilton will open on Sunday, Dec. 10, with a tour of alfalfa production, a tour of Hoover Dam, a modern chocolate factory, and field demonstration plots near Las Vegas. Presentations will begin on Monday morning and continue through Tuesday afternoon. Sponsors and exhibitors are welcome.

For more information on registering for the meeting, visit www.alfalfa.org or call Nikki Picanco at (530) 752-0700.

Glickman Announces Mandatory Livestock Price Reporting

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Increasing transparency in the livestock industry, U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman recently announced a new rule that requires large cattle, swine and lamb packers and importers to provide contract information, including pricing, for public dissemination.

The new reporting will provide information on 80-95 percent of all cattle, boxed beef, slaughter hog, sheep, lamb meat, and imported lamb meat transactions.

"Price reporting will help level the playing field for small farmers and ranchers, allowing them to better compete in an increasingly concentrated agricultural economy," said Glickman.

Under the new rule, packers who annually slaughter an average of 125,000 cattle or 100,000 swine or slaughter or process an average of 75,000 lambs are required to report to USDA transaction details involving purchases and sales of livestock, boxed beef, boxed lamb, and lamb carcasses. Importers who annually import an average of 5,000 metric tons of lamb meat products also must report.

New market news reports available to the public will information covering the prior day swine market, forward contract and formula marketing arrangement cattle purchases, packer-owned cattle and sheep information, sales of imported boxed lamb cuts, and live lamb premiums and discounts. In some instances, information already being collected under the current voluntary market news reporting program will now be required.

In order to assist packers and importers required to report information under the new rule, USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service will provide technical assistance and training to ensure compliance with the electronic data transmission requirements of the rule.

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — To Pennsylvania's human population, an abundant acorn crop means more debris to sweep off the sidewalk.

To the state's wildlife, however, lots of acorns on the ground spell good fortune, according to a wildlife expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Across the United States, almost 100 animal species rely on acorns as a major food source," said Gary San Julian, Penn State professor of wildlife resources. "In Pennsylvania, at least 20 to 25 species use acorns as a major source of food."

San Julian said a variety of factors can account for a bountiful acorn crop. White oak species mature acorns every year, and red oak species mature acorns every two years, but both can drop acorns every year.

Weather conditions, such as too much or too little rain or late spring frosts can affect the number of acorns produced in a season.

"In low crop years, the birthrate for some species of wildlife, such as gray squirrels, will decline the following year," San Julian said. "Because of the increased competition for food, some species will have a tough time."

"This year's crop means that more young are likely to be produced by animals that forage for acorns."

Abundant acorns are available for a relatively short period during the fall, requiring each wildlife species to develop specific methods to take advantage of the crop. Acorns, which are highly digestible and rich in carbohydrates, serve a wide range of animals in a variety of ways.

Bears and deer, for instance, eat acorns to put on a layer of fat that sustains the bear through its hibernation and helps the deer make it through severe winter conditions. Such animals as squirrels, chipmunks, blue jays and forest mice store acorns in caches and burrows or by burying them.

"The public tends to think of squirrels and chipmunks as the big consumers of acorns," San Julian said. "In fact, some studies have shown they are not even in the top three."

Several years ago, a School of Forest Resources study found that the white-footed mouse, a forest-dwelling rodent, consumed more than 90 percent of the acorn crop at a few sites in central Pennsylvania. San Julian also points out that an insect pest, the acorn weevil, can decimate an acorn crop.

Wildlife plays a big part in forest regeneration, San Julian said. Squirrels can bury hundreds of acorns, at least some of which will take root. "Acorns drop like marbles out of the trees and many animals help distribute these seeds in the forest," he said. "Squirrels, blue jays, and other wildlife are crucial to oak regeneration."

In recent years, even huge acorn crops have not resulted in bumper seedlings growing in forests. In some circles, much of the blame for poor regeneration is placed on feeding by wildlife, principally deer. San Julian agrees to an extent, but warns that interrelationships between food and wildlife are rarely that simple.

"Deer predation on acorns may be a major reason for poor regeneration, but other factors, such as small animals eating acorns, timber harvesting practices, and site characteristics all interact, and it's difficult to say that more trees would grow if there were fewer deer," San Julian said.

To illustrate the intersecting relationships between wildlife and forest regeneration, San Julian said that white-footed mice can consume large portions of an acorn crop. However, the mice also prey on acorn weevil larva during the winter. "If you eliminate the mice, the weevil might cause more problems," he said.

"We're dealing with a completely different scenario in the forest ecosystem in Pennsylvania than we were 200 to 300 years ago," San Julian said. "I don't think you can put the blame on just one species."

APRONS, OVEN MITTS & ENDLESS FUN!

A chill is in the air and what better way to spend the day than surrounded by the sweet aroma of freshly baked cookies. Whether it's Classic Thumbprint Cookies or Spiced Apricot Pastries, there's sure to be a cookie in the batch for everyone.

Create a family tradition that will last far longer than the sweet taste of cookies! The J.M. Smucker Company has some simple tips and ideas that will make baking cookies fun for the whole family.

- A perfect way for kids to review their basic math skills is by having them measure out the ingredients. Assign flour or sugar measurement responsibilities to the younger kids who can hold a plastic measuring cup. Ask the older ones who can handle the teaspoons and tablespoons to measure the baking powder and salt.
- When preparing the Classic Thumbprint Cookies, have your kids choose their favorite flavors of jams, jellies and preserves and let them place the fruity dollop themselves. The result? A dazzling array of jewel-like cookies that your children will proudly present to admiring guests.
- Make sure to have plenty of paper towels and napkins on hand, especially when working with the crumbly oat mixture in the Chewy Red Raspberry Squares. Don't forget to remind kids to wash their hands before preparation.
- Children of all ages will love using the cookie cutter to cut out the circles, squares and even stars for the Peanut Butter and Jelly Sandwich Cookies. Try chilling the dough ahead of time for easier cut outs.
- Keep a roll of refrigerated cookie dough on hand as well as your favorite flavor of Smucker's jam to make Quick n' Nutty Jam Gems for those last minute gatherings or the perfect "I'm hungry, what's fun to eat?" snack.

It may be cold outside but it will be warm inside when baking delicious cookies. So get the hot cocoa ready and remember to involve the whole family in the cookie-making process. You'll create some great memories and put a smile in everyone's day.

Peanut Butter & Jelly Sandwich Cookies

Yield: 48 cookies

- | | |
|----------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1/2 cup natural peanut butter | 1 large egg |
| 1/3 cup unsalted butter | 2 cups all-purpose flour |
| 1/2 cup packed light brown sugar | 1/4 teaspoon salt |
| 1/4 cup honey | 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder |
| | 1 1/2 cups strawberry or grape jelly |

1. Mix peanut butter, sugar, butter, honey and egg.
2. In a separate bowl, whisk together flour, salt and baking powder; add to the peanut butter mixture and mix well.
3. Divide the dough into 4 equal portions. Wrap each portion in plastic wrap or waxed paper and refrigerate 2 hours or overnight.
4. Remove portions from refrigerator and place each portion between two sheets of plastic wrap or waxed paper. Roll each portion into a "sheet" about 1/8-inch thick. Refrigerate dough again if it becomes too soft to handle.
5. Preheat oven to 350°. Using a drinking glass or cookie cutter, cut dough into circles. Using a smaller drinking glass or cookie cutter, cut smaller circles or "windows" in half the circles. Transfer cookies to a non-stick baking sheet, leaving 1/2-inch between them.
6. Bake all cookies 5-6 minutes or until they're just starting to brown. Using a spatula, transfer the cookies to a cooling rack. When cookies have cooled, spread jelly on the plain cookies and top them with the "window" cookies.

Quick n' Nutty Jam Gems

Yield: 32 cookies

- 18 ounce log refrigerated sugar cookie dough
 - 1 cup peanuts
 - 1 cup jam or preserves, any flavor or combination of flavors
1. Put cookie dough log into the freezer for 15 minutes. In the meantime, preheat the oven to 350°. Finely chop the peanuts and put them in a small bowl.
 2. Take cookie dough from the freezer and remove the plastic wrapper. Using a sharp knife, cut the dough log into 16 1/2-inch thick slices. Cut each slice in half and shape each half into a ball. Roll dough balls in the chopped peanuts and place 2 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheets.
 3. Bake 10-12 minutes or until golden brown on edges. Remove cookies from the oven and immediately make a depression in each cookie with your thumb or the back of a teaspoon. Spoon preserves into the depression of each cookie. Transfer the cookies to a wire rack to cool.

Classic Thumbprint Cookies

- | |
|--|
| 2 cups all-purpose flour |
| 1/2 cup brown sugar, packed |
| 1 cup butter (at room temperature) |
| 2 large eggs, separated |
| 1/4 teaspoon salt |
| 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla |
| 2 cups finely chopped pecans |
| 1 cup preserves or Jam, any flavor or combination of flavors |

1. Preheat oven to 350° degrees. Coat baking sheets with cooking spray.
2. In a large mixing bowl, beat sugar, butter, egg yolks, vanilla and salt. Slowly add the flour and stir until well blended.
3. In a small bowl, beat egg whites until foamy. Put nuts in a separate bowl.
4. Using a teaspoon, scoop out dough and shape into 1-inch balls. Dip each dough ball into the egg whites, then roll in the nuts and place on a prepared baking sheet. Using a teaspoon or your thumb, make a round indentation in the top of each cookie, being sure not to make a hole all the way through the dough.
5. Bake cookies for 8 minutes (they will not be fully baked); remove from oven. Using teaspoon or other small spoon, scoop the preserves into the indentation of each cookie. Return cookies to oven to bake another 6-10 minutes, or until lightly browned. Remove from oven; cool on a wire rack.

Spiced Apricot Pastries

Yield: 60 pastries

- | |
|--|
| 12 ounce jar apricot preserves (may use peach preserves instead) |
| 1/2 cup finely chopped walnuts |
| 3/4 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice |
| 1/2 teaspoon grated orange zest (orange part of the peel) |
| 1 egg |
| 1 tablespoon water |
| 1 cup butter (at room temperature) |
| 8 ounces cream cheese (at room temperature) |
| 2 tablespoons sugar |
| 1/2 teaspoon vanilla |
| 2 cups all-purpose flour |
| powdered sugar |

1. Preheat oven to 375°. Coat baking sheets with cooking spray.
2. Combine preserves, nuts, pumpkin pie spice and orange zest; mix well and set aside.
3. In separate bowl, beat butter, cream cheese, sugar and vanilla until creamy. Add flour; mix until well blended.
4. Divide dough into thirds. On a lightly floured surface, roll out each portion of dough to 1/8-inch thickness. Cut with a 3-inch round cookie cutter.
5. Spoon heaping spoonful of apricot filling in center of each round. Combine egg and water; brush on edges of each round. Fold opposite sides to center, slightly overlapping edges; pinch to seal. Place on lightly greased baking sheets.
6. Bake at 375° for 10 to 14 minutes or until light golden brown. Transfer to wire racks to cool. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Pumpkin-Orange Marmalade Cookies

Yield: 48 cookies

For the cookie dough:

- | |
|--|
| 1 cup sugar |
| 1 cup canned pumpkin (not pumpkin pie filling) |
| 1/2 cup sweet orange marmalade |
| 1/2 cup shortening |
| 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour |
| 1 teaspoon baking powder |
| 1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice |
| 1 teaspoon baking soda |
| 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon |
| 1/4 teaspoon salt |
| 1/2 cup chopped walnuts (optional) |
| 1/2 cup raisins (optional) |

For the frosting:

- | |
|--|
| 3 cups powdered sugar |
| 1/2 cup butter (at room temperature) |
| 1/4 cup sweet orange marmalade |
| orange juice (to thin frosting if necessary) |

1. Preheat oven to 350°.
2. In a large mixing bowl, beat together sugar, pumpkin, orange marmalade and shortening. Add flour, baking powder, pumpkin pie spice, baking soda, cinnamon and salt; mix until well combined. Stir in walnuts and raisins, if desired.
3. Drop rounded spoonfuls of dough onto ungreased baking sheets. Bake for 11-13 minutes or until lightly browned. Remove from oven and cool on a wire rack.
4. Prepare frosting: in a medium mixing bowl, beat all frosting ingredients together, adding orange juice only as needed to make frosting spreadable. Frost each cooled cookie.

Chewy Red Raspberry Squares

Yield: 16 squares

|---|
| 1/2 cup butter (at room temperature) |
| 1 cup light brown sugar, firmly packed |
| 1/2 teaspoon almond extract |
| 1 cup all-purpose flour |
| 1 teaspoon baking powder |
| 1 cup oats (quick-cooking or old-fashioned) |
| 1/2 cup red raspberry preserves |

1. Preheat oven to 350°. Coat an 8x8-inch baking pan with cooking spray.
2. In a medium mixing bowl, beat butter and brown sugar until smooth and fluffy. Beat in almond extract.
3. Mix in flour, baking powder and oats until mixture is combined and crumbly. Reserve 1/4-cup of the mixture for topping; set aside. Pat remaining mixture into bottom of prepared baking pan.
4. Spoon preserves on top of oat layer, spreading it as much as possible without disturbing the bottom layer. Sprinkle reserved topping on top of preserve layer.
5. Bake for 30-40 minutes or until lightly browned. Remove from oven and cool on a wire rack. When cooled, cut into squares.

Solutions To Make Perfect Holiday Cookies

An infinite variety of cookie recipes are made during the holidays. Some cookies are soft, some are crisp, some spread during baking and some hold their shape. In order to produce the characteristics we want and correct faults, it is useful to know what causes these characteristics.

Crispness

Cookies are crisp if they are very low in moisture.

The following factors will contribute to crispness:

1. Low proportion of liquid in the mix. Most crisp cookies are made from still dough.
2. High sugar and fat content.
3. Evaporation of moisture during baking due to high temperature and/or long baking.
4. Small size or thin shape, so the cookie dries faster during baking.
5. Proper storage. Crisp cookies can become soft if they absorb moisture.

Softness

Softness is the opposite of crispness, so it has the opposite causes, as follows:

1. High proportion of liquid in mix.
2. Low sugar and fat.
3. Honey, molasses, or corn syrup included in formulas. These sugars are hygroscopic, which means they readily absorb moisture from the air or from their surroundings.
4. Underbaking.
5. Large size or thick shapes, retains moisture.
6. Proper storage. Soft cookies can become stale and dry if not tightly covered or wrapped.

Chewiness

Moisture is necessary for chewiness, but other factors are also required. In other words, all chewy cookies are soft, but not all soft cookies are chewy.

1. High sugar and liquid content, but low fat content.
2. High proportion of eggs.
3. Strong flours or gluten developed during mixing.

Spread

Spread is desirable in some cookies, while others must hold their shape. Several factors contribute to spread or lack of spread.

1. Sugar: High sugar content increases spread. Coarse granulated sugar increases spread, while fine sugar or confectioners' sugar reduces spread.
2. Leavening: High baking soda or baking powder content encourages spread.
3. Temperature: Low oven temperature increases spread. High temperature increases spread. High temperature decreases spread because the cookie sets up before it has a chance to spread too much.
4. Liquid: A slack batter — that is, one with a high liquid content — spreads more than stiff dough.
5. Flour: Strong flour or activation of gluten decreases spread.
6. Pan grease: Cookies spread more if baked on a heavily greased pan.

Mixing Method

1. Measure ingredients accurately. Have all ingredients at room temperature.
2. Place the fat, sugar, salt, and spices in the mixing bowl. Cream these ingredients at low speed. For light cookies, cream until the mix is light and fluffy, to incorporate more air for leavening. For a dense, chewier cookie, cream only slightly.
3. Add the eggs and liquid and blend in at low speed.

4. Sift in the flour and leavening. Mix until just combined. Some recipes require that the liquid and flour be added in steps in order to blend uniformly.

Dropped Cookies

Dropped cookies are made from a soft dough. They are fast and easy to make up.

1. Make all cookies of uniform size and thickness.
2. Drop the cookies onto the prepared baking sheets. Allow enough space between cookies for spreading.
3. Rich cookies will spread by themselves. If the formula requires it, flatten the mounds of batter slightly with a weight dipped in sugar.

Bagged Cookies

Bagged or pressed cookies are also made from soft dough. The dough must be soft enough to be forced through a pastry bag, but stiff enough to hold its shape.

1. Fit a pastry bag with a tip of desired size and shape. Fill the bag with the cookie dough.
2. Press out cookies of desired shape and size directly onto prepared cookie sheets.

Rolled Cookies

Cookies rolled and cut from a stiff dough. Leftover scraps when re-rolled make inferior, tough cookies.

1. Chill dough thoroughly.
2. Roll dough out 1/8-inch thick on floured canvas. Use as little flour as possible for dusting, to prevent tough cookies.
3. Cut out cookies with cookie cutters and place on prepared baking sheets. Cut as close together as possible to reduce the quantity of scraps.

Molded — Balled — Icebox Cookies

These cookies are called molded because they are sometimes tamped out with special cookie molds. They are also called balled cookies, because the individual portions of dough may be rolled into balls by hand. The dough may also be rolled into cylinders in waxed paper and refrigerated until ready to bake hence the name icebox cookies.

1. Roll the dough out into long cylinders about one-inch thick, or whatever size is required. (Refrigerate the dough if it is too soft to handle or if being stored for future use.)
2. With a knife cut the roll into pieces as recipe states.
3. Place the pieces on prepared baking sheets, leaving two-inches of spaces between each.
4. Flatten cookies with a weight (such as a glass) dipped in granulated sugar or flatten with a fork.

Sheet Cookies (often referred to as bar cookies)
Sheet cookies vary so much that it is nearly impossible to give a single procedure for all of them. Some of them are almost like sheet cakes, only denser and richer. They may even be iced like sheet cakes. Others consist of two or three layers added and baked in separate stages. The following procedure is only a general guideline.

1. Spread cookie mixture into prepared sheet pans. Make sure the thickness is even.
2. If required, add topping or brush with an egg wash.
3. Bake as directed. Cool.
4. Cut into individual squares or rectangles.

Preparing The Pans

1. Use clean, unwarped pans. Place dough on a cool cookie sheet.
2. Lining the sheets with parchment or nonstick sheets is fast, and it eliminates the necessity of greasing the pans.

3. A heavily greased pan increases the spread of the cookie. A greased and floured pan decreased spread.
4. Some high-fat cookies can be baked on ungreased pans.

Baking

1. Most cookies are baked at a relatively high temperature for a short time. Preheat the oven.
2. Too low a temperature increases spreading and may produce hard, dry, pale cookies.
3. Too high a temperature decreases spreading and may burn the edges or bottoms.
4. Even a minute of overbaking can burn cookies, so watch them closely. Also, the heat of the pan continues to bake the cookies even after they are removed from the oven.

Cooling

1. Remove cookies from pans while they are still warm, or they may stick.
2. If cookies are very soft, do not remove from pans until they are cool enough and firm enough to handle. Cookies may be soft when hot but become crisp when cool.
3. Do not cool too rapidly or in cold drafts, or cookies may crack.

Storing

1. Cool completely before storing.
2. Store each type of cookie separately.
3. Freeze cookies up to nine-12 months in a foil-lined container separating each layer with plastic wrap. Tightly seal container, label and freeze. Thaw cookies in refrigerator or at room temperature.

Come Clean For Great Coffee

A clean coffeemaker is essential to good tasting coffee. Mineral deposits from the water settle into the coffeemaker's water chamber, affecting the hardness of the water used to brew the coffee.

If the brewing water gets too hard, the coffee may begin to taste strange. The harder the water that goes into the coffeemaker, the more frequently the equipment should be cleaned.

At a minimum, the coffeemaker's pot and filter container should be cleaned once a week. Refer to the coffeemaker's manual for specific cleaning instructions.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

No, not here.

And, not here either. But I know it has to be here somewhere. So I keep rooting through the box.

"Lemont, The Lonely Monster." No, that's not it. "A Charlie Brown Christmas." Not that one either. Not "Kittens." And not "Milk." But I add those to the growing stack of books.

This particular box of beloved books from our kids' past had been temporarily "lost" under other boxes stacked on top of it in a storage area upstairs. Gathering Christmas decorations in anticipation of the upcoming holiday, I found this treasure.

"Dinosaurs." And "Sea Full of Whales." Not the book I'm hunting, but add those to the stack as well.

Books have always been a personal treasure, from the time my first grade teacher at York Township Elementary School taught me those early-reading words...Dick, Jane, Spot.

"Katie and The Big Show." A battered, bedraggled, soft-backed book about a bulldozer on a community highway crew who saves the community after a blizzard, when all the other equipment was too wimpy. An all-time favorite of our equipment enthusiast son. Definitely put that one to the pile.

A vow I made early in our parenting years was that our kids — in any way I could influence them — would grow up loving to read. Early on, we started a routine of making trips to our local community libraries. We read every day before nap times — and often other times. There were always books wrapped in the modest stack of gifts under our decorated tree. We rarely missed ordering a few good, inexpensive, soft-back children's books when the Loganville-Springfield Elementary School sent home its childrens-book-sale selections.

"If I Had a Bus." A cardboard, "tiny" book, which folds into a small package, but unfolds into a two-foot long tale about imagination and a mini-van. Held together with love and oodles of cellophane tape. Old tape, falling off. We have wider, stronger, better tape around here to extend its years of use for an 18-month-old who likes those little, chunky-style books.

On the pile it goes, with "A Child's Garden of Verses," and "Gobble, Growl, Grunt" and "On the Farm," and "Star Wars Pop-Up Book." And an assortment of titles by Richard Scarry. And lots of Golden Books.

Old friends, these books are. We spent literally hours together, on the couch, on the floor, curled up before bedtime. Now, we are passing them on to the next generation, our grandchildren Josh and Caleb, Rachel and baby-girl still unnamed but due in the springtime.

They were born into a family of booklovers and book collectors; we hope to encourage their early enthusiasm for reading by sharing these one-time favorites of their mom and uncle. We have few "old" toys to pass on to them because the few we bought became well used. But these books, as they were outgrown, were carefully packed away...for this very purpose.

Ahh, there it is.

"Corny Cornpicker Finds a Home." A story about a cornpicker parted from his tractor friend at the equipment dealership, bought by a farmer who promptly dumps him off the truck, dents his tender snouts, forgets to grease him, and then grumbles because he squeals as he harvests. A book with a machinery maintenance moral and a happy ending.

This was another favorite of our son, who has since turned his affinity for farm equipment and mechanics into a career. And the book I'd been hunting especially for grandson Caleb, whose first words included "dealership" and who snags every "tractor" magazine he can find in our house.

Our paper delivery boxes are currently sagging under the weight of pounds of shiny, colorful ads filled with all sorts of stuff aimed at making kids eyes shine with glee during the "giving," sometimes more resembling (to risk sounding like the Grinch) the "gim'me" season. They advertise glitzy electronics stuff of sci-fi nature, dolls that do more things than real babies, cars kids can actually drive (like they need earlier encouragement?), and the usual annual rollouts of some new piece of chattering, talking furry character. Books are rarely featured in the glossy holiday brochures.

Instead of battling to bust doors down into stores at 6 a.m., holiday shoppers might find it much more leisurely to do some gift gathering in childrens' book departments — thus encouraging another generation of our kids to read.

And there are probably no long lines there at the checkout.

Secrets For Making The Holidays Special

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — From caroling in the streets to decorating the tree, there are many ways to celebrate the holiday season.

Host a Holiday Recipe Swap
Show off your favorite family cookie recipe by hosting a holiday swap where friends and neighbors come together to exchange their most treasured holiday treats and recipes.

Pass Holiday Baking Secrets to Your Children

Make the baking experience special by sharing information about your special family recipes with your children. Share family stories or memories associated with the recipe. Getting your children interested in baking is one way of having family traditions and stories live on.

Create a New Recipe Book

Create a new holiday recipe book from your family's favorite recipes. Include dad's beloved butter cookie recipe, the nut bread recipe you can't live without and your child's favorite candy recipe. It'll be easy to bake up the family's favorites next holiday season, or to pass on the recipes to the next generation.

Design Special Ornaments

Get the whole family involved in holiday decorating by creating edible decorative ornaments. Using a basic butter cookie recipe, have kids cut out ornaments with cookie cutters shaped like stars, wreaths and trees. Everyone in the family can decorate the cookies with bright sprinkles or colorful icing.

Share Bountiful Baskets

Create a personalized basket of homemade goodies for anyone on your gift giving list. Use decorative tins, colorful cellophane and festive ribbons to wrap an array of homemade baked treats, such as biscotti, cookies, muffins, breads or candies. Then add small trinkets that might be of interest to your recipient, such as herbal teas, flavored coffees, dried flowers or stuffed animals, to add a personal touch.

Make Presents For Those In Need

Give back to the community this holiday season by gathering friends and family to make baked goods to donate to a favorite charity. Whether it's cookies, cakes or homemade breads, the gift of giving will fill your heart with holiday cheer and be a blessing to those less fortunate.

Spice Up The Table

Add a taste of the season to the table by accenting the delicious creations you've prepared. Decorate with traditional pumpkins, gourds, holly and seasonal flowers and greens. Use scented candles.

Secrets To Creating Delicious Baked Goods

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — Butter cookies, cakes, pies and tarts are all traditional baked goods for the holidays. To help create these delicious treats when baking, the Land O'Lakes Holiday Bakeline recommends using only real butter in order to maintain a fresh taste and consistent quality among batches. Here are more suggestions the Bakeline experts would like to share for creating delicious baked goods:

- Both salted and unsalted butter can be used interchangeably when baking. It's not necessary to add salt to the recipe when using unsalted butter.

- Butter absorbs odors easily. To ensure that odors do not transfer from the refrigerator to butter, wrap butter in an airtight food bag and store it in a separate compartment in the refrigerator away from odorous foods like garlic.

- For cookie baking success, butter must be softened, yet slightly firm. To soften quickly, remove from refrigerator and pound wrapped butter stick several times on each side with a rolling pin.

- If butter becomes too soft, dough will be too soft and cookies will spread. If dough is too soft, refrigerate for about 30 minutes to one hour.

- Always preheat oven 10 to 15 minutes before baking.

- Heating or melting butter allows for maximum flavor and develops the butter's rich, full taste.

- Remember, butter melts between 82° and 96°F. To prevent butter from burning, melt at low temperatures and check it frequently, about every 30 seconds.

- Cool cookies and breads completely on wire racks before storing.

- Baked cookies may be frozen up to six months if carefully wrapped and sealed in airtight containers.

- Butter and margarine both have 100 calories and 11 grams of fat per tablespoon. Butter is made from pure cream, the source of fat in margarine is vegetable oil.

- Light butter can be used as a low-fat substitute for butter. It is best used for topping vegetables or as a table spread.

- Cool cookie sheets completely between batches to prevent cookies from spreading too much.

- One of the keys to eating right is incorporating a wide variety of foods in moderation.

1 pound pitted dates
¼ pound candied cherries, red and green
1 pound candied pineapple
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
3 eggs

Cut nuts and fruit into a large bowl. Sift flour, salt, sugar, and baking powder and mix well with fruit and nuts. Beat eggs until foamy, add to first mixture and blend well. Put in small souffle cups. Bake at 300 degrees for 25-30 minutes. Especially unique on tray of Christmas cookies.

SALTED PEANUT CRISPS

1 cup shortening, part butter or margarine
1½ cups brown sugar
2 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
3 cups Gold Medal flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups salted peanuts
Mix all ingredients together, putting flour in last, a little at a time, then put peanuts in. Drop rounded teaspoons of dough about two inches apart on lightly greased baking sheet. Flatten with bottom of greased glass dipped in sugar. Bake 8-10 minutes or until golden brown.

MINCEMEAT BARS

1 box yellow cake mix
2½ cups quick cooking oats
1 jar (27 ounces) mincemeat
Combine cake mix, oats, and butter. Reserve two cups. Press the rest into the bottom of a lightly-greased 9X13-inch baking pan. Spread mincemeat over this. Sprinkle reserved oat mixture over mincemeat. Bake 375 degrees 30 minutes or until topping is lightly browned. Cool on rack and cut into 1X2-inch squares.

SNOWBALL COOKIES

3 cups finely-shredded coconut
18-ounces vanilla candy coating
1 package oreo cookies
Spread coconut on wax paper.

CHURCH WINDOWS (Non Bake)

1 bag colored mini marshmallows
10-ounce bag chocolate chips
2 cups confectioner's sugar
4 tablespoons butter
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cups graham cracker crumbs
1½ cups nuts

Melted butter and chocolate chips. Beat eggs and sugar. Add to chocolate mixture. Blend. Add vanilla, blend. Fold in marshmallows and nuts. Divide mixture to make five rolls. Place crumbs on wax paper. Roll your cookie rolls into the crumbs. Wrap in wax paper. Refrigerate several hours. Slice when ready to serve.

Llamas 'Llight' Their 'Llives'

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

SCHAEFFERTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — "We've put a lot of time and training into them," said Judy Eberly. "They're special characters."

At Juben Hill Llamas, Ben and Eberly not only care for their own llamas, but they are also active participants in several llama organizations and produce and promote llama wool.

The Eberlys own a breeding farm of 25 llamas on their seven-acre farm. "We've always had horses, that's why we bought the farm, because we needed more room," said Eberly.

The couple bought two male llamas for pets the year after they moved in. When the Eberlys discovered "how wonderful the fiber is," they expanded to their current breeding program.

The Eberlys are actively involved in "Llama And Fiber Friends," (LAFF), a group from Berks, Lebanon, and Lancaster counties which come together to do wool projects. They are also involved with the Eastern Llama and Alpaca Festival (ELAF), a festival conducted in April at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

This matching mother-and-daughter pair, "Shelly" and "Rachel," are "two peas in a pod," according to Eberly.

Preferring natural colors for the colors of her wool, Eberly uses the unlikely source of sugar free Kool-Aid to get the "lovely pastel colors" she looks for. "Any mother that has a child knows how enduring Kool-Aid stains can be," said Eberly. "And it smells good besides."

The Eberlys shear their llamas

bers to shrink and adhere to each other. "It can be compared to throwing a wool sweater in the washer and dryer," said Eberly. The shrunken fibers make up the dense felt fabric.

Another method of making felt is layering the fabric on bamboo and flattening it with a rolling pin motion in hot soapy water to end up with the desired shrunken fibers. Eberly notes that a crocheted or knitted piece can be put into a washing machine and agitated to shrink into felt.

This past year one of her big projects included making a panel of llama felt for a several-paneled "yurt," or circular, domed tent traditionally used by pastoral peoples of Asia. This particular llama-felt yurt was showcased at a conference in Vermont and will travel to other llama activities throughout the nation, according to Eberly.

The panel was made by rolling layers of felt in bamboo screen. The LAFF group produced the llama design by placing pieces of felt on the panel. Using a barbed needle, the felt was needle-punched together. The group donated the panel to raise money for the llama conference. Eberly, an artist with a studio on the farm, designed the panel.

Llamas are not just wool-producers at Juben Hill Llamas, however. Their personable dispositions and easy maintenance makes them an asset to the farm. "Llamas are easy to care for," she said. "They eat a small amount of food because they have very thorough digestive systems." Their thorough systems yield the small amounts of odorless "llama beans," which make ideal fertilizer, according to Eberly.

The animals are basically browsers and survive on pasture grass and specially made, locally available llama grain.

The gestation period for a llama is 11½ months, and twins are uncommon.

Color does not traditionally have a bearing on the value of an animal. The first thing Eberly looks for is conformation. "We also look at the breeding background, what quality they come out of, if the mother was a good mother," said Eberly.

Each llama grows its own distinct coat, from long and silky to shorter, thicker, and more fluffy wool. "One is not better than the other, it depends what you want to use it for," said Eberly. "The finer wool has a crimp to it and may spin better, but the coarser guard hair, which protects the underwool, is a strong hair used for rugs or outer garments." These guard hairs, according to Eberly, are readily identifiable and can be pulled out of the cleaner underwool.

A heavy wool coat means that llamas love the cold weather, said Eberly.

"Temperament varies a lot, but they're generally gentle and curious. All have very distinct personalities. They're very leery of strangers. You have to prove to them that you're trustworthy."

The males are also mild mannered and are only separated to control breeding.

"We do a drill team routine to Elton John's 'Can You Feel The Love,'" said Eberly. "It kind of says how we feel about our animals."

"Quechee" checks out the handmade felted llama panel made by the LAFF group and held by Kay Schotta, Lititz, and Judy Eberly. The panel is made entirely with handmade llama felt. Some of the felt pieces have long pieces of fiber that were left hanging loose to give the llama real-life look. Eberly also designed the panel.

In addition the couple is members of the Greater Appalachian Llama Association and go to llama conferences every year. Much of the fund-raising efforts of the groups, said Eberly, goes to llama medical, behavioral, and fiber research.

Eberly also participates on a 12-16 member drill team, a precision marching team that performs choreographed routines to musical selections. The group has performed at the llama and alpaca festival in addition to Hershey Park for the past two years and annual appearances at the Unionville Fair.

The Eberlys' llamas travel to churches, libraries, social get-togethers, harvest festivals, schools, and small local fairs.

Wool is an important part of the Eberly's llama business. Judy not only processes the wool but conducts spinning demonstrations at harvest festivals and schools "to teach children about fiber and animals."

"It's actually considered to be warmer than sheep wool," she said. The wool is also noted for its softness.

She believes that llama wool is easier to handle than sheep wool because it is lanolin-free. "It's not oily. It's a very dry, soft wool."

during spring. Shearing, which takes approximately one hour per animal, yields two to three pounds of wool per llama. Many farms do hand processing, according to Eberly.

The on-farm processing involves shearing, washing, carding, and spinning. "The fiber can be warm, knitted, or crocheted, anything you would use high-quality yarn for," said Eberly.

Yarn, wool, garments, and even lead ropes are made from llama wool.

Eberly makes extensive use of llama felt, another use of wool, in her projects. The felt may be used to make hats, large hanging panels, blankets, and rugs. "Felted fiber has gone on for hundreds of years. It's really using old techniques to make the felted objects," she said. Hats, booties, mittens, and gloves are made from llama felt.

"It's probably not a matter of having the market but having the time to make the felt," said Eberly.

Eberly uses several felt-making procedures. One method of making the fabric includes placing layers of felt on a screening in different directions, and, along with the addition of hot, soapy water, rubbing the fibers in a circular motion. This causes the fi-

A heavy wool coat means that llamas love the cold weather, said Eberly.

The Eberlys spend ample time working with the friendly animals. "They really soon learn who they can trust and who will take care of them," said Eberly.

Recipes From

Around The World

AUSTRIA — Austria's most important family holiday is the Christmas season. Austrian children list their Christmas wishes in a letter to the Christkind, the Christ Child. They post their letters in the window so they are sure to be seen. The Christmas tree, decorations and gifts are kept in a locked room which is off limits to the children. The children believe that Christkind and his angelic helpers are working to decorate the tree. When Christkind completes his preparations on Christmas Eve, the door is opened and there is the tree in all its glory with the manger and presents for every member of the family.

Sachertorte (Sacker Cake)

6 ½-ounces semi-sweet chocolate

¾ cup butter

¾ cup sugar

8 egg yolks

1 cup flour

10 egg whites, stiffly beaten

2 tablespoons apricot jam

Icing: 1 cup sugar

½ cup water

7-ounce semi-sweet chocolate

Beat butter until creamy. Melt chocolate. Add sugar and chocolate to the butter and stir. Add egg yolks one at a time. Add flour. Fold in egg whites. Grease and butter eight to nine-inch cake tin. Pour mixture in. Bake in 275°F oven about one hour. Test with toothpick. Remove to board and cool. Turn bottom up and cut in half. Heat apricot jam slightly and spread between layers. Cover with chocolate icing. If desired, cut cake into two or three layers. Fill with apricot jam or whipped cream.

ICING: Cook sugar and water to thin thread. Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add sugar to chocolate gradually. Stir constantly until icing coats the spoon. Pour on top of cake.

CHANUKAH — Chanukah, the Festival of Lights, is a celebration of the victory of the Maccabees and the rededication of the Jerusalem Temple. It also commemorates the miracle of the oil that burned for eight days.

Mandelbrodt (Almond Bread)

1 egg

2 egg whites

1 cup sugar

2 tablespoons grated lemon

1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups unsifted flour
½ cup corn oil
2 ½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ cup almonds, finely chopped

In a large bowl of an electric mixer, beat egg and egg whites with ¼ cup of the sugar at high speed until lemon colored, about five minutes. Stir in lemon rind and vanilla. Add 1 cup of the flour, beating at low speed until well mixed. Add corn oil heating until blended. Stir together remaining 2 cups of the flour, baking powder, ½ teaspoon of the cinnamon and almonds. Gradually add to egg mixture, beating at low speed until thoroughly mixed. Turn dough onto floured surface and knead about three minutes or until no longer sticky. Divide dough in half. Shape each half into two loaves, three-inches wide by 10-inches long by one-inch thick. Place on greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes. Cool. Slice loaves into ½-inch thick slices. Stir together remaining ¼ cup sugar and remaining ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Sprinkle cut side of cookies with sugar mixture. Return to oven and bake for 10 minutes or until crisp. Cool on wire rack. Makes about 40 cookies.

KWANZA — Kwanza is an African American and Pan-African holiday which celebrates family, community and culture. It is celebrated from Dec. 26 through Jan. 1. It was established in 1966 in the midst of the Black Freedom movement and thus reflects its concern for cultural groundedness in thought and practice, and the unity and self-determination associated with this. Gifts are given mainly to children but must always include a book and a heritage symbol.

Banana Fritters (From West Africa)

1 ½ cups flour

5 tablespoons sugar

3 eggs
1 cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
5 medium bananas
Oil for deep fat frying
Cooking thermometer
Powdered sugar

Put flour and sugar in a large bowl. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Stir in milk and salt. Stir well. Peel bananas. Put in small, deep bowl. Mash bananas well. Stir bananas into flour batter. Let sit 20 minutes. Pour oil three-inches deep into a large saucepan. Heat until it reaches 375 degrees. Put large spoonfuls of batter into oil. Fry until brown on both sides. Remove it from oil. Drain on paper towels. Sprinkle with powdered sugar. Serve warm.

DENMARK — Christmas is the most nationally celebrated holiday in Denmark. Christmas Eve marks the highlight of the festivities with church services, feasting, and exchange of gifts. The Christmas Eve supper is usually served about 6 p.m. The traditional meal is started with Risengrod, a rice porridge with cinnamon or malt topping and a big butter "eye" in the center. Buried inside the porridge is a single, whole almond which everyone tries to find. A prize is awarded the winner, and if a single girl is the lucky person, tradition says that she will be married very soon.

The porridge is followed by roast goose surrounded by apples and prunes, browned potatoes, red cabbage, and currant jelly and desserts. Christmas Eve is climaxed by the unveiling and lighting of the Christmas tree and the exchange of gifts among the family.

Potato Soup

3 large potatoes

1 small onion

Water

2 cups milk

2 tablespoons butter

1 tablespoon chopped parsley

¼ teaspoon pepper

Peel potatoes. Cut each potato into four chunks. Peel onion. Chop into small pieces. Put potatoes, onion, and salt into a two-quart saucepan. Add water to cover potatoes. Boil over medium-high heat for 20 minutes or until potatoes are soft. Remove pan from heat. Mash potatoes, onions and water together. Stir in milk. Put pan on medium-low heat. Simmer and add butter, parsley, and pepper. Stir well until smooth. Serve hot.

PANAMA — Dec. 25 is the feast day of El Nino Dios, the Son of God. Not Santa Claus, but the Christ child visits the homes of good children as they lie asleep leaving toys and other gifts by their bedside.

Sweet Squash

(South American Recipe)

2 large butternut or acorn squash

1 ¼ cups water

3 ½ cups dark brown sugar

2 cups whipped cream

Cut each squash in half. Clean seeds out of center of squash. Put squash in a large skillet. Pour water into skillet. Sprinkle brown sugar over squash. Put skillet on stove over medium-high heat. Bring to boil. Cover skillet. Reduce heat to simmer. Simmer over lowest heat for an hour. Pour liquid over squash every 10 minutes. When squash is soft, remove skillet from heat. Let cool. To serve, put squash on a plate, spoon liquid over squash, and top with whipped cream.

SWEDEN — Christmas is the most festive and interesting of all Swedish holidays. It begins on Dec. 13 with Saint Lucia Day and ends on Jan. 13, Knut's Day. The Swedish Christmas is a warm and wonderful occasion. It is a time when a family gathers together from distant places for an extended holiday usually ending Jan. 13, Knut's Day. On this day, there are many children's parties, the tree is plundered, and Christmas is "swept out" of the home for another year.

Spritz

2 ¼ cups flour

1 cup confectioners sugar

¼ teaspoon baking powder

½ teaspoon salt

1 cup butter, softened

3 egg yolks

1 teaspoon vanilla flavoring

½ teaspoon almond flavoring

Mix flour, confectioners sugar, baking powder and salt in a large bowl. Mix butter, egg yolks, and flavorings in a bowl. Add butter mixture to flour mixture. Blend. Put dough into a cookie press. Press cookies onto an ungreased baking sheet. Bake eight to 10 minutes or until slightly brown.

QUESTION — A reader requested an old recipe for clear bean soup made with fresh pork.

QUESTION — Durwood Tuttle, Knoxville, makes sweet pickles in a crock that he stores in a cellar. About three weeks ago, a gray fuzzy mold formed all over the crock. He washed the crock thoroughly with bleach water but it doesn't keep the mold from forming again. Any help would be appreciated.

ANSWER — L. Reichert, New Park, requests a recipe for clear toy candy or barley sugar. Thanks to N.E.K., Lebanon, who sent in a recipe.

Clear Toys

3 cups sugar
1 cup white Karo
½ cups water

Mix together and cook until 300 degrees on candy thermometer, about 20 minutes. If you have no mold, spray the muffin tins once when you start. Add a few drops of food coloring. You can also pour the mixture on a cookie sheet and break into pieces.

ANSWER — Mary Long wanted a recipe for bring to preserve cucumbers. Thanks to Frances Hona, Alpha, N.J., who sent a recipe.

Cucumber Brine

6 quarts water
3 cups vinegar
1½ cup pickling salt
2 tablespoons Alum

Boil 10 minutes and cool. Pour over cucumber. Cover with plate to weigh down pickles so they remain covered with brine. Cure for at least 10 days in a cool place.

ANSWER Lois A. Crone, Wellsville, sent in more recipes for the reader that requested "cookies in a jar" recipes from Better Homes and Gardens.

Brownies In A Jar

⅓ cup cocoa
1 cup peanut butter or white chips
1 cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup semi-sweet mini chips

Layer ingredients in a one-quart glass canister in jar in the following order from bottom to top: sugar, cocoa, peanut butter chips, flour, baking powder, salt and small chocolate chips. Tap jar gently on the counter to settle each layer before adding the next one. Cover, attach baking directions.

Gift tag directions: Heat oven 350 degrees. Grease and flour 8X8X2-inch baking pan. Combine ½ cup melted and cooled butter and two slightly-beaten eggs in a large bowl. Gently stir in jar contents. Spread in prepared pan. Bake for 35 minutes. Cool in pan before cutting into bars. Makes 16.

Ranger Cookies

1¼ cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
½ cup shortening
2 cups fruit-flavored crisp rice cereal
⅔ cup packed brown sugar
⅓ cup shredded or flaked coconut

Stir together flour, baking powder, and baking soda in a medium mixing bowl. Using a pastry blender, cut in shortening until well blended. Layer remaining ingredients in a clean, one-quart glass canning jar in the following order: half of the cereal, flour mixture, brown sugar, remaining cereal, and coconut. Cover jar and attach gift tag with directions for mixing and baking.

Gift tag directions: Use gift within one month. Heat oven to 375 degrees. Empty contents of jar into a large mixing bowl. Stir in one beaten egg, two tablespoons milk and one teaspoon vanilla until well combined. Drop by rounded teaspoons two inches apart on an ungreased baking sheet. Bake in oven for about 8 to 9 minutes or until edges are golden brown. Cool on cookie sheet one minute. Makes two dozen.

ANSWER — Lucy Lowe requested a recipe for old-fashioned scrapple, well seasoned. Thanks to Mrs. Dorothy Stoms, Deerfield, N.J., for sending a recipe. According to the article that Mrs. Stoms attached, settlers who came to Pennsylvania from Germany brought this method of using scraps of meat. Pieces are sliced off of baked loaves, pan-fried and served with ketchup, syrup, or apple butter

Philadelphia Scrapple

2 pounds pork shoulder
5 cups water
1 onion, sliced
1 small bay leaf
1 cup white cornmeal
2 teaspoons salt
¼ cup minced onion
¼ teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon ground sage
¼ teaspoon black pepper

Flour

Shortening

Combine pork, four cups water, sliced onion and bay leaf in large saucepan. Cover and simmer one hour. Drain pork and reserve broth. Discard bones and chop meat fine. Mix cornmeal, remaining one cup water, salt and two cups reserved broth in saucepan. Cook, stirring until thick. Stir in meat, minced onion, thyme, sage and pepper. Cover and simmer one hour.

Turn into 9x5-inch loaf pan and chill until firm. Cut into 12 slices, dust lightly with flour. Heat shortening in skillet. Fry scrapple slices until browned on both sides. Serve at once. Makes about six servings.

ANSWER — An Airville reader wanted to know how to make smoked and sweet deer bologna. Thanks to Sanford Landis, New Providence, who sent in a recipe.

Deer Bologna

50 pounds venison
50 pounds beef, may contain some fat
12-15 pounds brown sugar
4½ pounds salt
4 ounces black pepper
1½ ounce salt petre

After skinning deer, wipe out body cavity with a cloth soaked in apple cider vinegar. This will remove any bad smell from the meat. Stuff mixture in cloth bags and hang in a cool place. After several days paint the bologas with liquid smoke or potent smoke. After bologas are cured to your liking, may be placed in the freezer. Do not store in a warm room or bologas will get hollow. Reminder: As in making rabbit stew, first catch the rabbit.

ANSWER — Mary Levy, Coopersburg, wanted a recipe in which raw cut-up pumpkin is placed in a double pie crust and baked. Thanks to Margaret Strause, Leesport, who sent in a recipe.

8" Fresh Pumpkin Pie

3 cups (diced small) raw pumpkin
½ cup white sugar
¼ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon molasses
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter

Mix all ingredients together. Pour into unbaked pie shell, cover with top crust. Bake at 375 degrees for 40 minutes.

Thanks to Bernice Haas, Emmaus, who also sent in a recipe.

Sliced Pumpkin Pie

3 cups sliced raw pumpkin
1½ tablespoons flour
½ cup brown sugar
4 tablespoons molasses
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons water
Butter

Line pie pan with pastry. Sprinkle flour over bottom. Place sliced pumpkin in shell, piling up in center. Mix other ingredients and pour over top of pumpkin. Place top crust and slash top of crust to let steam out. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes, then reduce to 375 and bake 20 minutes longer.

ANSWER — For the reader who requested gluten-free recipes, here is an additional recipe from Virginia Kalp, Stahlstown.

Gluten-Free Pumpkin Cookies

1 cup white rice flour
¾ cup potato flour
¾ white sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon gluten-free baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup canned pumpkin
½ cup shortening
½ cup ground walnuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine all flours, baking soda, baking powder and cinnamon in large bowl. In smaller bowl, mix the shortening and sugar together. Blend in pumpkin. Gradually add contents of small bowl into large one. Add walnuts and stir well. Place one inch balls of dough onto greased cookie sheets. Press flat with fork or wet glass. Bake for 10-12 minutes. Allow to stand for two minutes. Remove to wire racks to cool completely. Makes 36 cookies.

ANSWER — Rachel Musser was searching for a spaghetti sauce recipe that tastes similar to Prego pasta sauce (traditional). Thanks to Doris Horton, Randolph, N.Y., who sent in a recipe.

Spaghetti Sauce

½ to 1 bushel tomatoes, peeled and cut
2 (1 pound 13 ounces) canned mushrooms
½ bunch chopped celery
3 sweet green peppers, chopped
3 sweet red peppers, chopped
1 pound chopped onions
4 of 5 small zucchini, grated
1 pound grated carrots
6 tablespoons olive oil
3 tablespoons crushed garlic
1 tablespoon salt
½ cup chili powder
½ cup oregano leaves 4 cup basil leaves, crushed
½ cup parsley flakes
½ cup sugar

3 (1 pound 13 ounces) can tomato paste
Cook vegetables until done, but firm. Add all but tomato paste and bring to a boil. Add tomato paste to thicken. Pack into hot sterilized jars and seal.

When Relatives Or Neighbors Provide Child Care

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Are you thinking of having a relative, neighbor, or friend care for your child while you work? This can be a good choice. You already know the person and so does your child. Their home may be near yours. Your child may be used to going there.

Think about these things ahead of time to prevent possible problems later on.

- Find out how much it will cost and when you will be expected to pay. Relatives and friends have bills to pay, too, and will need their payment on time.

- Make sure to give the person your work schedule, including travel time to and from work to see if that fits with her schedule. Give your child's caregiver phone numbers where you can be reached at all times.

- Think about what kind of child care arrangements you will make if your caregiver is sick or on vacation.

- Ask how many children your relative, friend, or neighbor is watching. If it's four or more, not including her own children, she will need a certificate of registration from the Department of Public Welfare. Providers who care for more than six children, not including their own, must have a license from DPW.

- Take your child for a visit and have your relative or friend spend time one-on-one with her. Step back a little and see how they get along.

- Are your child rearing ideas the same? Find out about discipline. Make sure you both agree on this issue.

Wild Game Food Safety Brochures Help Hunters, Fishers

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A Penn State Cooperative Extension food safety specialist has developed a comprehensive program to arm hunters and others with important information on wild game food safety.

The centerpiece of the program is a set of five free publications addressing proper care and handling of wild game, fish, and birds.

"With over a million licensed hunters in the state, many people rely on game meat to sustain them through the winter — especially in rural areas," said Catherine Cutter, assistant professor of food science. "But game animals — especially deer — are known to carry E. Coli, and game birds can carry Salmonella.

Since cleaning, dressing and butchering often are done in the field, airborne contaminants, weather, temperature and other factors can affect the safety of your product."

E. Coli 0157:H7 and Salmonella are harmful bacteria found in the intestinal tracts of game, livestock, poultry and other animals. These pathogens can cause gastrointestinal distress in humans and can be fatal to young children and older adults.

"The publication series includes pamphlets on gamebirds, fish and venison, designed to give hunters and fishers basic information on what to do out in the field — pointers to keep pathogens and bacterial growth down so they would have a better product," Cutter said. "Two longer booklets expand on the information in the pamphlets and elaborate on field dressing procedures for specific animals, with instructions on how to make sausages or jerky."

The series includes:

- Venison, a brochure that identifies tools and utensils hunters should carry, in addition to tips on field dressing, transporting and kitchen processing.

- Fish, a brochure that presents safety guidelines for before and after the catch. Topics include transporting, processing and tips for smoking and freezing.

- Game Birds, a brochure that suggests the proper tools to take when hunting, as well as tips on field dressing, removing feathers and aging meat.

- Proper Field Dressing and Handling of Wild Fish and Game, a 10-page booklet that explains the crucial steps in field dressing and butchering fish and game immediately after harvest. Diagrams illustrate techniques for deer and other large animals, as well as small game, wild turkey, waterfowl and fish.

- Proper Processing of Wild Game and Fish, an 18-page booklet dedicated to the preparation of venison, birds, fish, and other game after it's brought in from the field. Sections include the importance of temperature in controlling spoilage, butchering and cutting techniques, differences between aging, curing and smoking; procedures for canning game; and recipes for making jerky and sausages.

In addition to developing the publications, Cutter recently conducted a workshop to instruct Penn State Cooperative Extension agents from around the state in the latest techniques of field dressing, handling and butchering of wild game. The day-long training included updates on current state hunting regulations from a representative of the Pennsylvania Game Commission.

Agents learned to inspect game animals for disease, received a presentation on canning of game meat from Chef Albert Wutsch of the Indiana University of Pennsylvania Academy of Culinary Arts, and sampled deer bologna and jerky made at the Penn State Meats Lab. Participants also saw a step-by-step demonstration of venison butchering courtesy of Griffith Brothers White Tail Ridge of Huntingdon, Pa.

"Armed with this knowledge, extension agents can offer in-depth information to people in their counties through workshops, phone calls and other means," Cutter said. "Our goal is to provide the state's hunters with convenient resources for food safety and hunting information."

Single copies of the wild game meat safety publication series are available free of charge by contacting your county Penn State Cooperative Extension office, or by calling the College of Agriculture Sciences Publications Distribution Center at (814) 865-6713. The brochures and booklets also are available free of charge from the College of Agricultural Sciences Publication Web site at <http://pubs.cas.psu.edu/Default.html>. They also can be found at local deer processing plants and butcher shops.

Elementary Students Get Real

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — The students of North Dickinson Elementary School in the Carlisle School District of Cumberland County have learned all about getting "real" dairy products for better nutrition. Thanks to a real seal contest conducted recently by Cumberland County Dairy Maid Melissa Detman.

The students were asked to collect real seals from dairy products purchased by their parents. The object of the contest was two-fold: to recognize and understand the meaning of the real seal, and to learn how to distinguish imitation foods from those made with real dairy products.

The 202 students ranging from grades kindergarten through fifth grade, collected 1,438 real seals. The class that collected the largest number of seals, Mrs. Bittinger's fourth grade with a total of 482, was rewarded with an ice cream party sponsored by Rakes-traw's Ice Cream, Mechanics-burg.

During the party, the children completed puzzles and answered dairy-related questions to learn more about dairy farming and foods and also to receive extra prizes, such as milk mustache posters and Got Milk® key-chains.

Monique Varner, the school principal, said, "The children were so excited about collecting the seals and worked hard to find them. We were very pleased to have the dairy maid conduct this contest at our school."

As an added attraction and point of emphasis for the children, Melissa also created a collage using more than 700 of the collected seals to spell out the letters "R, E, A, and L."

Fourth graders at North Dickinson Elementary School collected 482 real seals in a contest sponsored by Cumberland County Dairy Maid Melissa Detman.

Do Animals Read The Newspaper?

Animals can't read, but they may have a stack of newspapers in their stall or pen.

Why?

Because shredded newspapers can be used for bedding. It can be cheaper than using straw or wood shavings, and it's a great way to recycle!

Not every farmer chooses newsprint as bedding for his or her animals, although some have tried it. Newsprint has the same insulation and storage qualities as straw and sawdust. It can even be cleaner for animals because it doesn't stick to manes and tails like sawdust or straw. And used newspapers are easy to find. In fact, there are nearly 3 million newspapers printed every day in Ohio—even more on Sundays!

It's a wise choice to recycle old newspapers. There are many donation centers throughout the state—your town may have one. There are also curbside collection programs set up where you bundle newspapers and a "newspaper collector," as opposed to your regular garbage collector, picks them up.

Newspaper recycling—whether used in animal stalls or by donation to special collection agencies, is a way you can help make a positive difference in our environment!

Scientifically yours, Twig

Winter Safety Tips For Playing In A Winter Wonderland

Children love to play outside in the snow. Follow these tips to keep your child safe.

- Dress your child appropriately for cold weather. Layers of clothing will keep your child warmer than just a sweater. Start with a light cotton T-shirt, add a turtleneck shirt, top with a sweatshirt or sweater, and the child's winter coat. Two pair of socks will keep a child's feet warmer than a single pair.

- Make sure your child wears a hat or hood when he or she goes outside. An uncovered head loses a lot of body heat.

- Don't forget boots, mittens or gloves, and scarf to insulate your child's body from the cold.

- Have your child play outside for short periods of time in cold weather. Check him or her now and then to make sure he or she is not too cold or wet.

- Teach your child to look and listen carefully for cars. Hoods and scarves may reduce his or her ability to see or hear.

- Choose a safe place to go sledding. Stay away from streets or places where there are trees or buildings to hit.

Snow Play

When the snow is fresh and new, go on a walk to look for animal tracks or make your own tracks.

Fill buckets or cardboard boxes with snow. Dump out the forms to create snow sculptures.

Make a snow person. Give him or her a personality by decorating with an old hat, scarf, or coat.

Make shoveling play time. Give your child a small shovel to clear sidewalks and paths with you. You may want to help an elderly neighbor or relative clear his sidewalks too.

Make snow angels. Lie on your back in the snow, with your arms at your sides and legs together. Keeping the elbows straight, move your arms up and down in the snow. Keeping the knees straight, open and close your legs. Stand up and admire your "angel" shape in the snow.

If you have a hill nearby, take your child sledding. Inner tubes or cardboard boxes will do if you don't have a sled and they are safer for young children.

Tell-A-Story

On a cold winter night, gather the whole family into the living room for a fun evening of storytelling. An adult begins a story, stopping in the middle. Have other family members take turns adding to the story.

For example, "One day it was snowing. The children went out to play and..." Family members tell the rest of the story.

Winter Bird Watch

Birdwatching is a fun activity for both children and adults. Hang a bird feeder close to a window where you can watch the birds feed. You may want to borrow a book on birds from the local library to identify the ones you see at your feeder.

You don't have to buy a bird feeder at a store. Birds will enjoy eating from feeders that you and your child make from things you

Bottle Bird Feeder

- Need: large, clean, plastic bleach bottle; knife or heavy scissors; string; and birdseed.

- To Do: an adult should cut large rectangles from both sides of the bleach bottle. Have your child fill the bottom with birdseed. Tie a string through the handle and around the neck of the bottle to hang from a tree branch.

Grapefruit or Orange Shell Bird Feeder

- Need: grapefruit or orange; thin wire or strong string; bacon fat; and birdseed.

- To Do: cut the grapefruit or orange in half and eat the fruit. Cut three pieces of wire or string about eight-inches long for each grapefruit or orange shell half. Poke three equally spaced holes in the side of each shell to put the wire or string through. Melt bacon fat, mix in birdseed, and pour into the orange or grapefruit shells. Let the fat harden. Place the wire or string in the holes of the shell. Hang from a tree branch.

Pine Cone Feeder

- Need: large pine cone; blunt table knife; birdseed; peanut butter or honey; two paper plates; and string.

- To Do: (This can be a messy project, so cover your table with newspaper.) Put some peanut butter or honey in a dish. Give your child a blunt table knife and let him or her spread the peanut butter or honey on the pine cone. When it is covered, he or she can roll it in a plate full of birdseed. The birdseed will stick to the peanut butter or honey. Tie string to the pine cone, making a loop to hang the feeder to a branch, fence, or bush.

Snowpainting

- Need: one or more plastic bottles with squirt tops (such as dish detergent bottles); food coloring; and water.

- To Do: fill the plastic bottle with water. Have your child add several drops of food coloring to color the water. Go outside together and "squirt" colored designs on the snow.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Recently, I got a phone call from a man who wants to have a bed and breakfast in the house where my grandparents lived. He wants the house and furnishings to be authentic. When I think back to the house, as I remember it as a child, I doubt that he really wants authenticity.

It was a dark house which has since been remodeled. Windows have been added and several partitions removed. Instead of a closed staircase, it is now an open one and bathrooms have been added.

My grandfather owned one of the first radios, and to hear it we had to wear earphones. Therefore, only one person at a time could listen to it. There was a very ornate pump organ in a small back room and my great aunt could really play it and sing along.

There was a front parlor with a large phonograph. We children liked to hear the music that came from the revolving discs. But we did not like the loud noise from the cream separator that was in a back kitchen. It was powered by wires from a small windmill.

There was a large room over the kitchen where the boys and hired man slept. There was no heat in the house other than the big black kitchen stove. Two bedrooms were never used unless cousins came to visit. Some bedroom suites remained almost new and I inherited two of them.

Every morning my aunt swept the rag carpet in the kitchen. First she scattered wet coffee grounds on the floor and then she swept them up. I believe this was to "keep down" the dust. On Tuesday, she sold flowers at the Central Market in Lancaster. The gladiolas were stored in big white crocks in the summer house overnight. She was my special aunt as she always had a supply of candy, cookies, and raisins to give me.

Cookies, cookies, cookies. They overflowed two wheelbarrows when the Youth Evangelism Team preparing for a short term assignment in Honduras on Nov. 4,5 was in Springs. The gift was donated by members of the Springs Mennonite Church where, Sara Heatwole of Springs, kneeling at left, is a participant. Her parents, the Rev. Steven J. and Bonnie Heatwole are standing between Justin T. Hollinger and Crystal Zimmerman. Calvin Herr is at left and Jennifer Laub is also kneeling. Since August the young missionaries have been in training at the Baltimore Discipleship Center where such luxuries are not affordable on the austere food budget.

Cookies By The Wheelbarrow Full

GAY BROWNLEE

Somerset Co. Correspondent

(Somerset Co.) — The five young adults visiting the Springs Mennonite Church were fairly overjoyed to learn the homemade cookies, snacks, and fresh fruit the ushers were pushing up the center aisle in two big wheelbarrows, were a gift for themselves and about 30 others at the Baltimore Discipleship Center.

At first they assumed it was a collection the church was making for a local food pantry.

The three previous months at the center on Eutaw Street they had been united and trained as a team for Youth Evangelism Service (YES), a program of Eastern Mennonite Missions, Salisbury.

The stringent food budget at the center excluded luxuries and treats such as those overflowing the carts a few feet from the front pew where they were seated together. During training, therefore, the 19- and 18-year olds learned a good deal about self-denial. In preparation for the work in Honduras or similar countries, digesting spiritual food was most important.

When the Springs people learned the church would be hosting the deprived disciples — including Sara Heatwole, daughter of the pastor and his wife, Bonnie — it seemed a jolly good idea to spring a surprise on them.

Mennonite cooks are known for producing hearty food, at temperatures from 350 to 375 degrees. The idea soon spawned assorted favorites like chocolate chippers, peanut butter, and ginger cookies. Dozens and dozens of them. Someone purchased a peck or two of apples, others contributed juicy oranges and crunchy snacks.

With Sara were Crystal Zimmerman and Calvin Herr from Ephrata; Justin T. Hollinger from Quarryville, and Jennifer Laub from Waynesboro, Virginia. The sixth person and leader was Jeff Nissley, 21, from Middletown. At the last minute he was unable to accompany the team and stayed behind in Baltimore.

The five were eager to make presentation in Sara's home church where committed prayer partners promised to stick with them in spirit, throughout the assignment, which runs January through May 2001 in Choluteca.

Amid the anticipation to hear the team's testimony and report, Pastor Heatwole directed the ushers: "Bring er in boys and "YES" was converted to "Yummy Excellent Snacks."

Youth Evangelism Service coordinates teams of four to seven young adults, gives them three months of training and sends them on six months to a year of cross-cultural ministry. Participants raise their financial and prayer support.

On Nov. 28, the delegation will depart from the United States and spend December in Guatemala where they will apply themselves to the study of language and Honduran ways. They don't know what is next, but are committed to doing their best.

Their training encompassed many things — working in schools with elementary children and special needs children, performing community outreach, and developing attitudes of ministry, sacrifice and love for the work ahead.

"We are trying to share God's love to people," Sara said, despite the part of town where they lived not being a good one.

Cranberry Power

(NAPSI) — Recent studies have confirmed that drinking cranberry juice cocktail, long used as a folk remedy for urinary tract infections (UTIs), may help maintain urinary tract health.

An estimated 40 percent of women experience at least one UTI, and many have recurrent infections, making UTIs the second leading cause of lost work days for women.

Physicians say that urinary tract infections, characterized by a frequent and urgent need to urinate, painful urination and lower back or abdominal pain lead to over nine million doctor visits every year and cost the health care system more than $1 billion annually. It may be surprising that such a common problem may have such a simple solution.

During the last several years, the growing body of research on urinary tract health has helped change many physicians' views on the benefits of cranberry juice cocktail from folklore to fact.

A 1994 university study published in a leading medical journal found that the consumption of 10 ounces of cranberry juice cocktail reduced the bacteria associated with urinary tract infections among the elderly women who drank it daily. This research also declined the myth that cranberry made the urine more acidic and speculated that there was something specific in cranberry juice that prevented bacteria from sticking to the walls of the urinary tract.

A Rutgers University study published in The New England Journal Of Medicine succeeded in identifying the protective compounds in cranberries. The study confirmed the theory that these natural compounds, commonly referred to as condensed tannins, inhibit certain harmful bacteria from attaching to the urinary tract wall and causing infection.

"Our vision is to be a Christ-serving community," reported Justin T. Crystal described the routine of regular chores, duties, responsibilities, and group sessions. She said the team's three levels of learning included: 1. Relationship with God 2. Relationship with others 3. "Us and God and how we affect the world."

Sara said that dynamic speakers from France, Brazil, Canada, and the United States encouraged them to openly speak about their faith to other people, which caused them to gain stronger faith and understanding.

"They really impacted us," she said. It was her uncertainty about what to do after high school that influenced Crystal to join the YES team. "I had a real interest in missions," she said, "But training is a little overwhelming."

"I am excited about outreach, but a little nervous about what we are going to be doing," reported Calvin, who is pleased with the team. Justin T. loves kids and talked about his feelings when the assignment changed from that of rebuilding an area devastated by a hurricane to one that is missions oriented. At first, there was strong disappointment, but he got over it.

"I have learned lots and lots about prayer," Jennifer said. "It is so exciting to hear His (the Lord's) voice."

"In Baltimore," said Sara, "I was forced to become my own person and take steps of faith."

In the host country they will reside in private homes, but, Jeff still will be responsible for the delegation and major decisions regarding the team.

- Independent modular cutterbar with ten small-diameter cutting discs
- 102" wide conditioning rolls
- A full range of vertical and lateral flotation
- A torsion-bar roll-pressure system
- A cutterbar driven from both ends

For maximum harvesting efficiency, check out the Model 1431 Discbine. It's the best in the field.

A Stitch In Time

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

YORK (York County) — "She can't sit idle," said Merle Smeltzer, describing his wife, Edith's, penchant for hard work.

A typical day for Edith, 80, begins at 4:00 a.m. when she rises to do the laundry, cook, or bake pies, cakes, or bread. She usually begins working on her current quilt project at 8:00 a.m. and will continue, off and on throughout the day, until 7:00 p.m. except on Sundays, however.

The log cabin quilt top, her current project, will take approximately four weeks to complete with Edith working six days a week. She remains busy despite two hip operations.

Besides quilting for friends and family, word-of-mouth advertising has brought Edith more business, including out-of-state requests, than she will be able to handle this winter, she said. Most of her quilting is accomplished in the winter months.

Although she doesn't have a favorite pattern to quilt, the double wedding ring seems to be a popular pattern, observed Edith. One of her favorite quilt tops was a stained-glass pattern which looked like a church window.

"I've done quite a few wall hangings also," she said. Curtains and mending for family which includes nine grandchildren and four grandchildren, and friends are also examples of Edith's work with the needle.

Besides needlework, however, Edith is busy canning and freezing. She estimates she put up 50 quarts of fruits, pickles, and corn this year. "We did all of our own butchering until last year," said Edith. The couple raised their own beef and years earlier had raised 3-4 hogs a year to butcher.

"She just picked peas three or four weeks ago," said Merle. "We put in a second planting," said Edith.

The couple has lived at the same home, which adjoins the Samuel Lewis State Park, since they were married. At their 30th anniversary Merle began the tradition of buying Edith a bouquet of roses, one rose for each year married. This past August, for their anniversary, he bought her 60 roses.

Merle, 81, has lived in the same farmhouse since he was born. Edith, 80, grew up in nearby East Prospect, the youngest of five girls and one boy. She learned quilting from her mother, who taught all of her girls to quilt. One of Edith's older sisters married Merle's brother.

Edith never worked away from home but "I worked out in the field just like a man," said Edith. Her love of farming enabled her to be a help to her father until she was married.

During her childhood years Edith also helped to take care of the family's cows. When she was married, she helped to take care of the couple's cows, which they had until 12 years ago. These cows provided the butter and cream cheese which Edith made and sold at the couple's roadside stand. Besides milk products, the couple also sold eggs from the family's chickens. At one time 1,000 chickens were housed on the farm, a number which has changed to the 100 chickens. A garden supplies the stand with turnips, potatoes, raspberries, strawberries, tomatoes, peppers, and cabbage.

The stand also has a steady supply of walnuts during the fall months. So far this fall Edith has collected several bushels from the tree in the backyard and has hulled and cracked the nuts to yield 10 pounds so far this fall, with more on the way. "My husband made the nutcracker," said Edith.

"I was always interested in Busy fingers: Edith Smeltzer stitches over large stretches of this log cabin quilt almost every day. Her window view overlooks the Susquehanna River and, in the far distance, the Blue Ridge Mountains. This quilt top will take approximately four weeks of work to complete.

making things," said Merle. "We didn't buy much. If there was anything we needed we just fixed it up ourselves." Merle simply used an existing nutcracker as a pattern.

A nutcracker is really only the beginning of the workmanship Merle has invested into the farm. He not only added onto the farmhouse but also built the farm's outbuildings. "We're pretty self-sufficient," said Merle.

Merle, who has always been in farming, has combined agriculture with working off the farm over the years. He has seen many changes in agriculture, and remembers farming with mules and horses or seeing cattle being driven on foot from Lancaster to nearby Red Lion.

"I remember when my brother and I played in the dirt road. You didn't need to worry about cars," said Merle, who went to a one-room school. "I also remember that we used to use the reaper to cut wheat. I was 12 years old when my father died. We looked out for ourselves."

The Smeltzer's children, John, Eugene, Ray, and Mary Lou all live with their own families within four miles of the 6-acre home farm. Two sons have taken over farming the additional 150 rented acres that Merle had farmed.

Merle Smeltzer demonstrates the nutcracker which the couple uses to crack bushels of walnuts from the tree in their backyard. This fall Edith has hulled and cracked 10 pounds of nuts for their roadside stand where they also sell produce from their garden.

Merle and Edith Smeltzer display two newly-finished quilts at their home in York. Mrs. Smeltzer stitched the tops of 14 quilts last year.

Handling And Processing Wild Game Safely

Small game hunters need to be cautious in how they handle, process, and prepare game birds properly to prevent contamination from field to table. Dr. Catherine Cutter, Penn State Cooperative Extension muscle meat specialist, offers the following suggestions for ensuring the safety of wild game.

Fields Dressing

To reduce the risk of exposure to disease, wear disposable plastic gloves while handling birds.

Use clean water, premoistened wipes, or alcohol swabs to clean the knife frequently or between cuts to avoid dragging bacteria into the meat.

Dress the carcass as soon as possible.

To prevent bacterial growth, quickly cool the carcass to 35-40 degrees F.

After cleaning the cavity, place carcasses in plastic storage bags and pack on ice or snow, or refrigerate as soon as possible.

Keep carcasses out of direct sunlight and allow for adequate air circulation.

Transporting And Processing

Keep carcasses cool during transport. Keep them out of sunlight. Do not put birds in a vehicle's trunk while still warm. Allow for adequate air circulation.

Hold the carcass at 40 degrees F. or less. Freezing the carcass before processing may toughen the meat.

If aging a carcass, do so at 40 degrees F. or less for two or three days.

Kitchen Processing

Store any unfrozen meat in the refrigerator and use it within two to three days.

Keep raw meat separated to prevent cross-contamination in the refrigerator.

Thaw all frozen meats in the refrigerator or microwave and use immediately.

Heat all game meats to 155-160 degrees F. to reduce the risk of foodborne illness. Use a calibrated meat thermometer to ensure proper cooking.

If you will be stuffing birds, use a calibrated meat thermometer to ensure an internal temperature of 165 degrees F. for stuffing and 180 degrees F. for the bird. Remove stuffing from the bird before refrigerating it, because stuffing is a great place for bacteria to grow.

Use leftovers within one or two days, or freeze for later use.

Freezing Tips

Freeze meat while it is still fresh.

Use heavily waxed paper, freezer wrap, heavy duty aluminum foil, or plastic freezer storage bags for meat storage. Wrap meat tightly, and remove all air from the bag before sealing. Label packages with contents and dates.

Space packages in freezer to allow proper air circulation for cooling and freezing. Once packages are solidly frozen (within 24 hours), you can re-stack them within the freezer.

Properly wrapped meat will store in the freezer for nine to 12 months.

For more information on handling game birds safely, call your county's Penn State Cooperative Extension office for a free brochure called Proper Care and Handling of Game Birds — From Field to Table.

Somerset County Salutes Cooperative Extension

GAY BROWNLEE

Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Cooperative extension continues to change, according to Dorothy Bromley, director of the Somerset County Cooperative Extension. In remarks at the annual dinner meeting held at the Somerset Masonic Temple, she described the continual challenges of dealing with updated information with approximately 135 persons.

"It is increasingly difficult to be up to date," she said, "but the idea is to share expertise across county lines."

Adaptability, however, means progress as greater numbers of farmers are turning to cyber space in their operations and finding the computer an indispensable tool. In the farm office they are finding the computer will bring greater efficiency to every aspect of the business.

This is why cooperative extension workshops are so helpful. They facilitate and ease change for the farmer who takes the plunge and updates his system of operating.

"The trend more and more is farmers are incorporating computers into their business," reported Mike Harteis about a labor management workshop he conducted. Harteis is a multi-county extension agent who covers farm management issues in Cambria, Blair, Bedford and Somerset Counties. In January a workshop will be held for farmers with little or no experience, he said.

Melanie Barkley, another multi-county extension agent focusing on livestock, gave a report on two workshops she conducted. About 44 participants attended the one on horse pasture was held in Somerset. A meat goat home study first-time course had 115 participants, she said.

The New Farm Income Opportunities Tour and workshop in southern Somerset County drew such a great response that a repeat performance is planned.

Addressing farm safety will always be a priority issue for the cooperative extension. Those who registered for the 2000 Farm Safety Day were educated about the correct response to tractor overturns, PTO and machinery entanglements, silo and manure accidents, chemical and electrical emergencies and how to report accidents.

The children learned how to escape from a smoke-filled house and how to handle animals safely.

In the area of horticulture and natural resources the issues were pesticide training, weed control in pastures, West Nile Virus, and stewardship of forests.

Family Living programs during the year provided a springboard of sorts for change and personal accountability. Participants became aware that food handling goes hand in hand with health and nutrition. Child care, overcoming grief, managing stress on the farm and setting goals to save money and reduce debt were dominant issues.

It was reported the youth programs in Somerset County are strong. Participation among youths coupled with consistent support from adults makes public speaking and demonstration contests, shooting sports, the exchange trip, camp, foods, fashion, square dancing and county council rank with the best in the state.

Dr. Vincent Svonavec, joined those who touted the merits of 4-H membership from a personal perspective. A veterinarian and youngest of eight brothers, Svonavec said he followed them into 4-H.

Svonavec described "Fred" a white charolais steer that in 1978 was his first 4-H project. Despite his certainty the animal would win, it placed last. To his mother Svonavec declared he was going to purchase a steer from the same producer and name it "Derf," which is "Fred" spelled backwards — and the next time it would win. He was right. It did win.

Deidra Smith shared how 4-H has helped her to gain self-confidence after starting out an extremely shy youngster when first joining the program. She is the Lamb and Wool Queen of Somerset County.

"Four-H gives everyone a chance for leadership training," according to Nathaniel Barbera, a youth who has competed in every public speaking contest since he was old enough to begin.

In her presentation, Cassie Hays' personal translation of the four "Hs" were Heritage, Hard Work, Helpfulness and Happiness.

"It is impossible to not learn when a leader is hanging over your shoulder, said Cassie.

South-Central regional director Harold Ott, a native countian, said he has visited seven countries to help set up cooperative extension.

"The system of cooperative extension is the envy of the world. It is valuable resource, and you need to protect it" he said.

After votes were tallied in the election of board members the following were appointed: Michael Carr, Sipesville, and Gay Brownlee, Salisbury, were reelected to second terms. Steven Hoffman, Rockwood, and John Kreger, Jr., Upper Turkeyfoot Township, were elected to first terms.

In May 2001, the Somerset County Cooperative Extension office and other farm agencies will be settled in all new offices at 1590 N. Center Avenue, Somerset.

Streams and Lakes

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is also known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 x 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well -- until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

NOW UPDATED

Stream Maps of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey Maryland/Delaware

Why every fisherman needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the fishermen catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into... there's a sure way to up your odds... simply try new fishing waters. Fish where few fishermen ever fish.

Professor Higbee's Stream Maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind... showing virtually all of the streams, rivers and lakes in each state.

FREE LOCATION GUIDEBOOK INCLUDED

A guidebook is included FREE with each state map. It will pinpoint the "select waters" for specific species of fish in each state. Locate STREAMS and LAKES both alphabetically and geographically.

ANSWER — Garth Horlacher, Drums, wanted to know where to find replacement parts for long wooden handled farm tools. Ben Beller, Kirkwood, writes that Abner G. Fisher, Leaman Road, Lancaster, steams and bends wood and makes plow and cultivator handles.

ANSWER — Robert Finke, wanted a belly-mount mower for his 1950's era Cub tractor. Robert Long, 2111 Willow Lane, Clearfield, 16830 writes that production of both the rotary blade and flail tooth belly mower attachments for the Farmall Cub ended when production of the Farmall Cub ended in the mid 1950's. In addition, prices for used mowers which rarely become available are about the same as that of a new, similar-design belly mower manufactured by Woods corporation.

ANSWER — Mary Ann Lapp, New Holland, wondered where to get a heavy-duty spring approximately 1½-inches in diameter and 15-inches long. She wants it for a baby's jumper swing to hang from the ceiling. Thanks to Israel S. Beller who has hundreds of spring sizes. Contact Israel S. Beller, 343 Christiana Pike Christiana, PA 17509, or call (610) 593-2753.

Jeanette Robinson writes that farm machinery dealers also have the springs, as different equipment uses different size springs.

Stephen A Lapp, Kirkwood, writes that Ben R. Beller at Kirkwood Overhead Doors, 1665 Noble Road, Kirkwood, PA 17536, has all sizes and strengths of springs and can also custom-make the size needed.

ANSWER — Art Burt wanted a manual for a Mighty Mac tiller with a seven-horsepower engine. Contact Gerald A Myer, 5933 Wertz-town Road, Narvon, PA 17555-9467 for help.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to find wooden molding planes made by E.W. Carpenter, Lancaster. Roy Bitting, Loysville, has a plane. Contact him at (717) 789-3250.

ANSWER — Nan Garber, Elizabethtown, wanted a source for buying the brown and red "monkey socks" and the directions for making the stuffed monkey. Josephine Howey, of East Stroudsburg, PA, writes that at Goods' Department Store in Earl, PA, one-half mile east of Blue Ball on Route 23, has the socks and sewing directions in the package.

Wise Dry Goods also sells them with the package and directions. Contact Wise Dry Goods, R1 Box 274C, Loysville, PA 17047 or call (717) 789-4308.

Ruth Archer of Englishtown, N.J. writes that a catalogue called "Home Sew" from Bethlehem has a book of directions for eight different sock pals, plus regular size socks and miniature size socks for baby animals. The customer service number is (610) 867-3833.

A regular reader in Maryland says the socks can be found at Zook's Store in Intercoarse. This reader uses fabric paint to paint on the eyes instead of sewing on buttons or embroidery. More detail can be given, it's faster, and there are no buttons for babies to chew off.

Top Auctioneers Award

At the annual meeting of the New York State Auctioneers Association, held in Syracuse last week, Milo Turner, was named "Auctioneer of the Year."

The NYSAA, comprised of approximately 250 professional auctioneers, honored Turner for his expertise, commitment, and outstanding contributions to the organization, which promotes the auction method of marketing and the continuing education of auctioneers.

For the past 12 years, Mr. Turner has sold heavy equipment, motor vehicles, farm machinery, and other personal property at public auctions across New York and Pennsylvania. Service as a board member, past president, and current treasurer are some of his many contributions to the state organization. He is also active in charitable, community, and political groups.

Cedar Crest FFA Participates In National FFA Convention

Recently members of the Cedar Crest FFA went to Louisville, Ky. to attend the National FFA Convention.

Chet Brubaker, Amanda Hefelfinger, Eric Rheinheimer, Jared Zimmerman, Daniel Eberly, Kris Keller, Jeremy Balsbaugh, Joel Krall, Beth Kreider, Hannah Bomgardner, Sarah Krall, Amber Frank, and Heather Hawkins attended and were supervised by Harold Berkheiser and Allison Martin.

They made several stops on the way to Kentucky and were able to visit the Dayton Air Force Base Museum, Indianapolis Motor Speedway, Louisville Zoo, and they also had the chance to tour the Louisville Slugger Baseball Bat Factory.

While in Louisville they not only attended conferences, but were able to spend their spare time as tourists. They attended the National FFA Career Show and the FFA Shopping Mall. The career show included agriscience businesses and universities where FFA members could explore college and job possibilities. They also attended a reflections session and learned valuable leadership qualities from various speakers.

Leadership workshops were a special part of the conference as was a special concert by The Wilkinsons and Toby Keith. They were able to attend a presentation on hypnotism by Chuck Milligan, a nationally known hypnotist. They also attended the Parliamentary Procedure awards banquet.

Chet Brubaker, Joel Krall, Beth Kreider, Amber Frank, Heather Hawkins, Sarah Krall, and Eric Rheinheimer competed in the parliamentary procedure contest at the National FFA Convention. The team placed in the bronze bracket and received individual medals and a team plaque.

Cedar Crest FFA Attends Fall Leadership Conference

Recently the Cedar Crest FFA attended the Fall Leadership Conference at Penn State.

First-year participants were Travis Krall, Kyle Seyfert, Samantha Shepler, and Sara Triboli. They experienced workshops to help them communicate better with each other. The experience also helped them develop leadership as an FFA member.

The purpose of the workshops were to encourage the new members to get involved in the FFA and begin to make a difference in their chapter. They also heard national FFA officers speak on leadership.

Second-year participants were Chet Brubaker and Beth Kreider. They also attended workshops, not only for communication skills, but to develop leadership qualities as well. The Pennsylvania state FFA officers worked with them to help complete assigned tasks and develop qualities that an FFA officer should have.

They participated in various ice-breaker games and set individual goals for themselves in hopes that they too can make a difference.

Elizabethtown Ag Students To Host Christmas At Bear Creek

The Elizabethtown FFA students will host the third annual Christmas at Bear Creek.

Festivities will include many fun activities for all ages, such as a hayride, petting zoo, Santa Claus, Sugarland Express train ride, Santa's kitchen, gift shop, and lots of lights and decorations.

The activities are scheduled at the Bear Creek farm, located behind the Elizabethtown Brethren in Christ Church on East High Street before the overpass.

The celebration will be Friday, Dec. 1 and Saturday, Dec. 2 from 5 p.m.-9 p.m.

Manor FFA Receives National FFA Meats Technology And Evaluation Award

West Snyder FFA Members Attend Leadership Conference

STATE COLLEGE, (Centre Co.) — Spencer Etzler, Ciara Klingler, Brad Novinger, and Amanda Shaffer of the West Snyder FFA chapter attended the 2000 Fall Leadership Conference for Leadership and Professional Development in Oct. here at the Penn State Conference Center.

The conference, an activity of Penn State, focused on enhancing leadership skills and personal growth of Pennsylvania's top FFA freshmen and chapter officers.

Agricultural education majors for Penn State led all sessions. Featured speaker was Matt Lohr, former Virginia State FFA president and motivational speaker. Elio Chiarelli, Pennsylvania's national officer candidate 2000, was the master of ceremonies for the event.

Heather Hollenbach and James Wright, chapter officers, also attended the event and met with the state FFA officer team to learn how to best serve their chapter in their leadership roles.

Arc's Holiday Bed And Breakfast Tour Is Dec. 10

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Arc of Lancaster County will host the sixth annual Holiday Bed and Breakfast Tour on Sunday, Dec. 10, from 1-6 p.m. Proceeds from the event will help to provide support services for children and adults with mental retardation and their families.

Guests will have the opportunity to tour some of the most beautiful inns in Lancaster County. Participating inns include the following: The E.J. Bowman House, Neffsville; Blue Ball Bed and Breakfast, Blue Ball; Sheep Hill Bed and Breakfast, East Earl; The Candlelight Inn, Ronks; and Mill Creek Homestead Bed and Breakfast, Bird-in-Hand.

Eby's Pequea Farm Bed and Breakfast in Gordonville, though not being toured, is participating through a donation of a one-night stay as a door prize. Four other inns have also donated a stay at their inn as a door prize for some lucky tour participants.

Tickets for this spectacular event are $10 in advance or $12 if purchased at an inn the day of the event.

The ticket not only gains access to these superb inns, but also enables the guest to possibly win an overnight stay at one of the inns participating in the event.

Tickets can also be purchased at The Arc office or by mailing a check made out to The Arc along with a self-addressed stamped envelope to: The Arc, 630 Janet Avenue, Lancaster, PA 17601.

Connie Hayes Offers Expert Advice On Antique Quilts

GAIL STROCK

Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — "It's like buying art," reflects antique quilt expert Connie Hayes of Belleville, Mifflin County. "Learning about antique quilts is like taking a course in history. Quilts are a cultural expression. The quilts of the Pennsylvania Germans are different than the quilts of the Mennonites, Amish, or Scotch-Irish. They brought their culture and designs with them from Europe."

Connie's education in fine arts, her love for textiles, and her interest in antiques came together when she and her husband, Bill, moved into Bill's grandfather's old stone farmhouse situated among Amish neighbors.

"Bill's father was always neighborly with the Amish. When we moved into Bill's grandfather's home, I felt the need to know my neighbors. I fell in love with their quilts and took every opportunity to spend time with them," Connie said.

To learn more, Connie read books, visited museums, and attended workshops, always concentrating on the historical aspect of quilts. Now, Connie lectures about the varieties of antique quilts, scrap box quilts, quilt designs, and the characteristics of ethnic colors and patterns.

History

When it comes to quilts, the definition of antique varies. When talking about Amish quilts, very few Amish quilts from before 1890 have survived, either because quilts weren't made before then or they were used until worn out and discarded.

About 1940, the Amish began to incorporate outside influences, and these quilts are no longer considered collectible. In 1940, fabrics started to change.

Quilts made by other groups from 1820 to 1930 are considered antique and collectible.

When the Industrial Revolution hit around the turn-of-the-century, many cultural aspects became absorbed. Quilters traded quilt patterns, and it became increasingly difficult to determine who actually made a particular quilt.

Around the 1930s, quilt-making kits became available, and magazines offered patterns for purchase, even suggesting the colors of fabrics. Quilts of that era lost individual expression and showed little artistry.

"Almost every group used the material scrap box to make quilts because fabric was so expensive. The Pennsylvania Germans used bright colors; the Mennonites used small prints; the Old Order Amish used the dark colors of their clothing. Then, around the 1930s," Connie explains, "other types of bedding became widely available at a more reasonable cost, and the tradition of quilt-making was almost lost."

Buying Antique Quilts

Connie looks at three important factors when buying antique quilts: good condition, good color usage, and craftsmanship, which involves how well it's pieced and quilted.

She cautions against buying antique quilts over the Internet because, without actually seeing the quilt, it's hard to determine two of the three factors — condition and craftsmanship. She's finding fewer quilts at sales, but knows that many families still have heirloom quilts.

"True quilt lovers are caretakers. The collector takes the responsibility of keeping the quilt's history. There's great value in knowing who made the quilt. I encourage people to write that history down and pass it on with the quilt," she said.

"When I buy, I'm not buying a quilt for a bed. I'm buying quilts to hang," Connie says, referring to the full-size Amish quilt hanging just inside the front entrance to their home.

"I don't hang more than one quilt. I hang seasonal quilts for fall and Christmas. When our three children were little, I had a little ABC quilt for them."

Caring For Antique Quilts
Obviously, stains, fades, rips, and general wear devalue an antique quilt, as does new binding. But when a quilt must be repaired, Connie suggests using museum techniques to help preserve the quilt.

"Take black netting and simply sew it over the worn quilt piece to keep it from deteriorating further. Don't hang a quilt in direct sunlight. I take my quilt down every three months. I put mothballs, cedar chips, or an insect repellent herbal mix in a pillowcase, tie it shut, and put it in the dryer, along with the quilt, on air only (no heat) for 20 minutes. This removes any moisture and lint and destroys insect larvae."

Connie stresses that quilts made before the turn-of-the-century should not be washed. The colors can run together or fade. If a quilt must be washed, she suggests using Orvis (a detergent for washing horses). Fill a bathtub with tepid water, add a cup of Orvis paste, and dissolve it. Add the quilt and hand agitate, and then let it soak for two to three hours. Agitate again; drain the water; fill the bathtub with clear water; agitate; and drain. If the quilt still isn't clean, Connie suggests repeating the procedure, finishing with five clear rinses.

"I suggest placing the wet quilt between two sheets and laying it outside on the ground. Flip it when it's almost dry. Then hang it on the clothesline. Never dry clean an antique quilt."

To store an antique quilt, Connie suggests using acid-free tissue paper. Loosely fold the quilt in threes and store in a cotton pillowcase with no weight on it or an acid-free wedding gown box.

Quilters in the 1920s used material from printed feed bags to make quilts such as this one.

Preserving Antique Ideas Fascinates Itinerant 'Gismologist'

Mifflin Co. Correspondent

LEMONT (Centre Co.) — Find a good stick.

Cut a series of notches up the one side. Attach a propeller to one end. Rub another stick up and down over the notches, and watch the propeller spin.

Welcome to the world of heritage playthings — handmade toys created on warm, endless summer afternoons before electricity, before plastic, before television, and before intrusion, and tight schedules.

Toys that varied as much as the child's imagination, contrived on long childhood days filled with nothing but endless hours, toys made for temporary use.

The objects themselves rarely lasted, unless a child carved something special out of wood.

But Bill Metzel of Lemont, Centre County, fears more than the loss of gone-for-ever artifacts. He fears the dying of ideas.

"How many children nowadays know how to whistle with a blade of grass between their thumbs?" Metzel asks. "It's the extinction or death of passing along the traditional things from one kid to another. Kids learned a lot of these ideas from other kids, or from a wacky uncle, and it began to die with my generation — the commercial, sophisticated post-WWII era when the economy was good, people had more disposable income, the perception of children changed, and television became prevalent. With succeeding generations, the traditional became less and less well known."

spitting watermelon seeds or skipping stones?

How about making handkerchief parachutes, daisy chains, and tin can phones? Metzel dips his hands into a box filled with all kinds and sizes of whimsy diddles and pulls out one he made from a chair rail. "I doubt you'd find any of these in a museum," he smiles. While antique lovers around the world scan the auction ads, rummage through old boxes at sales, or carefully polish their great-grandfather's cradle, Metzel looks more at preserving how children amused themselves before electricity.

"These toys themselves are not antiques" remarks Metzel as he holds up a whimsy diddle made from a toilet plunger handle. "But it's not about the age of the object. It's about the age of its idea, its utility, and what it tells us about our ancestors."

(Turn to Page B20)

At the turn of the century (1900), someone made good use of material scraps in the scrap box by making this quilt using a pattern called triangles.

Bill Metzel of Lemont demonstrates how to work his handmade whimsy diddle. The heritage toy is part of Metzel's "Kids Back Then" enrichment program.

 "VOICES OF EXPERIENCE"

things that were open-ended. For example, I played with green Army men. One day they were Army men, the next they were construction workers. Today's action figures come complete with names, dress attire, and descriptions of "Traditional toys offer today's children a new aspect to their childhood. You should see kids' reaction to my program. No one ever told them that this was possible — open-ended play or running in a field for half an hour or digging holes! They look so shocked! It gives them an option over mindless TV."

None of the objects on Metzel's display table is worth any great dollar amount, although Metzel does attach a sentimental value to the first ball and cup he carved as a ten-year-old. The real value, though, the intrinsic value, lies in what we can learn from the object, what we can learn about how children played. It's the ideas that are antique and should be preserved in a sort of Smithsonian for ideas, for playing card bicycle motors, Indian mouth bows, bean bags, and whirligigs.

To share your heritage play memories or to book Bill Metzel for a "Kids Back Then" program, write Bill Metzel, Box 466, Lemont, PA, 16851, or call 814-234-7701.

Collectors Buying History With Old Vuitton Luggage

Bidding was fast and furious at the May 2 Couture and luggage auction at William Doyle auction in New York for the last eight lots. And why not? They were after all fine examples of early 20th century Louis Vuitton luggage. Top sellers were a c.1930 wardrobe trunk that sold for $2,200 and an early 20th century steamer trunk knocked down for $2,200. Other non-

Vuitton luggage such as an alligator dressing and overnight case sold for $747.50.

The revival of interest in early Louis Vuitton and other vintage luggage began around six years ago when Ralph Lauren began using them as decorative accessories in his store displays. Collectors and dealers viewed them as collectibles that could substitute for small tables. For instance, a Vuitton steamer trunk became a coffee table. Or, old luggage was used for its original purpose...travel. Ever since Vuitton and other old leather or reptile skin luggage has been skimmed up by collectors.

For a bit of history, Louis Vuitton, founder of the House of Louis Vuitton left his French village at age 14 to go to Paris. As the son of a carpenter, he had early on learned how to use traditional tools, and woods. Once in Paris, he observed that elaborate wardrobes, the high fashion, required someone to pack them. Shortly he became the favorite packer of Empress Eugénie. By combining his woodworking talents with his dress-packing experience, he came up with the first stackable, flat trunks. They were covered in a handsome, grey canvas. Soon, they became a status symbol for the titled and wealthy. In 1867, his luggage received awards at the Universal Exhibition in Paris. For the first time these stackable trunks could be stored in a luxury liner's hold or in a train's baggage compartment. In 1875, Louis Vuitton created a veritable travel closet with his wardrobe trunk. For the first time, suits, dresses and accessories could be stored without wrinkling. In 1931, they were reproduced, this time lined with red or green Moroccan leather.

It was Georges Vuitton, Louis' son, who created the now famous intertwined LV initials, in memory of his father in 1890. Georges also invented the five-tumbler lock (1890). With five bits of metal, cut and assembled to produce an infinite number of combinations, he created a theft-proof and personalized lock. Each client received his own personal combination, which secured all of his luggage. The LV initials were used to foil counterfeiters. In 1893, Americans were introduced to Vuitton luggage at the Chicago Exhibition.

To test the durability of new luggage, Georges Vuitton crossed the Algerian and Tunisian deserts on horseback.

The tradition of innovations continued with Gaston Vuitton, son of Georges. His main contributions to the firm were dressing-table sets with detailed wood, silver and mother-of-pearl fittings for travel cases. By 1924, many travelers required baggage for short trips. He created the "keepall" bag, soft and compact. In 1959, he introduced a waterproof version. To this day, the "keepall" is popular because it can be folded into small spaces. He carried this a step further in 1959 with his soft bags.

Clues: "Knockoffs" of Vuitton luggage began as early as 1896. Many of them can turn up at estate sales. Check for detailed workmanship and the five-tumbler lock, in early examples.

Don't pass up an authentic piece in bad condition. It would be worth the money to pay for restoration. Vuitton luggage can only go up in value.

Questions About

Antiques And Collectibles

Anne Gilbert, The Antique Detective, answers these questions sent in by readers.

• We have about 115 New York theater playbills dating from 1936 to 1962. They are in our summer home in Illinois. Who could we contact about selling them?

— N.B. — Naples, Fla.
First you must decide how to price them. Such items do well on the internet. For starters, write to Chuck Kaplan, Go2Sell, 400 Skokie Blvd., Suite 270, Northbrook, Ill. 60062. Be prepared to send examples, that Go2Sell will photograph and put on one of the internet auction sites they feel best suited. Or E-mail them at ckaplan@go2sell.com. They will tell you their fee.

• The enclosed prints are of the back and front of a dish I believe to be old, blue and white Dutch Delft. My dish matches the description and on the back is the Royal crown over a wreath with the word "Holland." Can you tell me the date and value?

— C.J.R. — Staten Island, N.Y.

Sorry to disappoint you. The plate is marked "Copeland" and was made by the English porcelain and pottery firm of W.T.

Copeland and Sons, 1850-1867. It could sell in a shop for $125 or more.

• What can you tell me about this ceramic platter in two shades of blue? The floral border surrounds a scene of a boat landing and the inscription "Landing of General Lafayette at Castle Garden, New York, 16th August, 1824. On the reverse is a circle with a crown, Staffordshire, and a word I can't read. Then "warranted."

— T.H. — Sunny Isles Beach, Fla.

What a treasure! Your platter is one of the many pieces made in the early 19th century known as "American Historical Views" on Staffordshire china. It was made by Clews, Staffordshire England pottery for the American market. It is part of a dinner set. In good condition it could sell in a shop for over $1,000.

It's Here: OSU's 2000 Soybean Performance Trials Results

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Hot off the press in time for selecting seed for spring planting is Ohio State University's 2000 Soybean Performance Trials results, available online or from local extension offices.

The trials produced outstanding yields for the 70 conventional and 125 Roundup-Ready varieties planted in two different plots each in the northern, central, and southern regions of the state, said agronomist Jim Beuerlein, Ohio State University. The trials' average yields by region beat the USDA's state-wide estimate of 44-bushels per acre.

"Many yields for certain varieties were up in the 60-bushel per acre range," Beuerlein said. "We even had some in the low 70s."

Conventional yields averaged (bushels per acre) 48.9, north; 48.7, central; and 56.9, south.

Roundup-Ready beans averaged 52.7, north; 50.8, central, and 61.2, south.

It was a good year to test disease resistance in particular varieties because of widespread sclerotinia and phytophthora infections around the state, Beuerlein said. Disease-resistant/tolerant varieties outperformed the highly susceptible varieties.

The trials' results also provide lodging ratings, protein and oil percentages as well as seed count per pound.

Control Of Antibiotic-Resistant Organism Sought

WOOSTER, Ohio — An antibiotic-resistant bacterium that produces one of the major food-borne illnesses in humans has two Ohio State University researchers looking for answers in the organism's most common host — chickens.

Campylobacter jejuni, a bacterium that harmlessly resides in birds, specifically poultry, produces campylobacteriosis, a gastrointestinal illness similar to Salmonella and E. coli in humans when infected with the organism. The most effective treatment involves antibiotics, known as quinolones, which are also used on poultry farms to keep the animals healthy. In recent years, cases of quinolone-resistant Campylobacter have surfaced, posing a potential threat to human health.

Qijiang Zhang and Theresa Morishita, Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center scientists, are conducting poultry farm-based studies to determine what factors contribute to Campylobacter resistance of quinolone and to develop effective education and management programs that may reduce the resistance. The project is being funded by a $567,232 USDA grant.

Research has found that quinolones used on poultry farms no longer kill the Campylobacter bacterium, increasing the potential for contaminated chicken and illness in humans.

"Studies have shown that the use of quinolones on poultry farms is linked to quinolone resistance in humans infected with Campylobacter," said Zhang. "Our goal is to identify management and environmental factors that contribute to the development and persistence of the resistance on farms and maybe we can reduce or eliminate that resistance."

Campylobacter is considered the most common foodborne pathogen in the United States. The Centers for Disease Control estimates more than two million people are infected each year with the organism, producing symptoms such as fever, abdominal cramps, and diarrhea. The illness can be life threatening to those with compromised immune systems.

People most commonly contract campylobacteriosis by drinking contaminated water or milk, mishandling raw chicken, or eating undercooked chicken. The FDA estimates that 80 percent of broiler chickens are contaminated with Campylobacter.

Zhang and Morishita plan to study the resistance of quinolone in both farm-based and laboratory settings to determine the rate of quinolone resistance in chickens under different production practices, how long the resistance to the antibiotic lasts after the animals are free of the antibiotic, and how much quinolone can be used in chickens before they develop a resistance to it.

The three-year project is a collaborative effort among Ohio State University, Ohio Poultry Association, poultry producers, and industry representatives.

The Servis® 2160 hydraulic boom rotary cutter from Servis-Rhino® is designed for agricultural applications including cutting grass, weeds, and material up to 2" in diameter on an intermittent basis.*SERVIS

The 2160 can be folded into a transport width of 113" for easier travel on roads and through gates. Replaceable, full-length skid shoes are standard to help prevent wear to the deck mainframe. The 3/16" pan blade carrier is reinforced with a 3/4" steel plate in the bottom of the pan for added strength and momentum. The deck side skirts are 1/4" x 9-1/4" to handle large volumes of material. Front and rear rubber safety deflectors are standard equipment.

With a maximum vertical reach of 22'6" and 190 degrees of head movement, the 2160 is ideal for trimming back brush up to 2" in diameter along fence rows or edges of open fields and other hard-to-reach areas. The design of the boom arm allows the 2160 to mow on the opposite side of low profile fences for easier fence row cleanup.

maintain larger acreages of grass, weeds, stalks, or material up to 1" in diameter.

The streamlined, close-coupled design allows economical operation on tractors as small as 30 horsepower on the SE8 and 45 horsepower on the SE10. The 85 HP center gearbox and 60 HP outboard gearboxes are protected from sudden shockloads by a slip clutch on the main driveline and torque dampers on the side drivelines. Pan blade carriers help the unit glide over field obstacles and updraft blades with a 4" blade overlap provide a clean cut.

SE10Pull-Type

The pull-type SE10 requires only a 45 HP (min) tractor for economical, wide-cut mowing. A hydraulic cylinder or ratchet lift screw is available for raising and lowering the mower. A spring shock absorber is optional to help cushion shockloads to the mainframe when operating in rough terrain. (Unit shown with optional chain guards. Deflectors are standard.)

Krause 7300 & 7400 Series Disc Harrows

25 years ago Hoover, Inc. introduced Krause Rockflex disc harrows to the East. Since then Krause discs have been the undisputed leader when it comes to finishing seedbeds on Eastern farms.

The new 7300 & 7400 Series Krause Rockflex disc harrows are in a class by themselves when it comes to getting the job done in tough conditions. Plus, Krause Rockflex technology backed by Hoover's outstanding service and parts support is as good as it gets. Krause Rockflex disc harrows from Hoover... a great idea for 25 years.

PROVEN PERFORMER

Scavenger® Spreader

Gehl's Scavenger® Spreader delivers the performance you need year after year, with increased durability and outstanding application control. All thanks to the following features.

- Heavy-duty round core auger with segmented paddles to blend manure. Powered both up and down to ram through heavy loads and break up bridging.
- Special "V" tank design to handle solid, heavy bedded, semi-solid, self-leveling and liquid manure.
- Adjustable auger and expeller speeds spread more types of manure.
- Variflow™ discharge featuring square-tooth expeller paddles for smooth, even spreading at the rate you choose.
- Improved drive system with heavier final drive chains and enhanced idler system.

GET PRECISE APPLICATION CONTROL

New Holland side-delivery spreaders provide the most material control. Whether you're light top dressing, laying down a heavy layer, or anything in between, the Model 3110 puts the right amount of material right where you need it.

- Handles a wide variety of material – slurry, gutter material, cow manure, even poultry litter.
 - V-tank design delivers material to the auger fast.
 - Heavy-duty round-core auger produces less drag.
 - Double-acting hydraulic cylinder moves auger up and down to keep material flowing.
 - Hydraulic gate and specially designed expeller give precise application control.
 - Backed by a 10-year warranty against tank rust-through.
- See us for all your spreader needs.
New Holland Box Spreaders also in stock.

Match A Spreader To Your Needs

W Yourself Too Thin

Get Unmatched Flexibility At A Great Price.

With eight sizes to choose from and a wide variety of options, it's easy to see how the New Idea 3700 Series Spreaders meet the needs of any operation. Their aggressive, main beater paddles are strategically spaced and angled to shred a wide range of material while giving you a consistent spread pattern.

Culvert-grade galvanizing over one-piece, copper-bearing steel sides provide a barrier against rust and corrosion. And for hauling long distances, the truck-mount option proves to be the safest, most economical way to transport large amounts of material.

To see how simple it is to customize your spreading operation, contact your AGCO® New Idea dealer today. You'll be surprised how much time and money you'll save with the New Idea 3700 Series Spreaders.

Franklin Mint Precision Oliver Super 99 Toy Tractor. $149.95

This is our way of saying "thank you" for all your business.

We now have one of the largest Oliver & White replacement parts inventories in the country with the recent purchase of another Oliver dealers NEW parts inventory. We have bought out over 10 other Oliver dealers NEW parts inventories in recent years. For example, we stock HY-CAPACITY rebuilt replacement clutch discs and pressure plates for every Oliver tractor from 1940-1975 and for every White tractor from 1975-1990. All HY-CAPACITY clutch discs and pressure plates have a one year warranty. We also now have replacement brake discs that work correctly and last for your 50 & 55 series tractors and replacement rubber seat suspension torsion springs and bushings to make your worn out seat suspension like brand new. Remember, we are your better source for Oliver tractor parts. Not only do we have the parts in stock, we have the knowledge and years of experience to ship you the correct part the first time!

NRCS Accepts Applications For EQIP Funds

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service is accepting applications until Jan. 12 for cost-share funding to install conservation practices for treating resource concerns involving livestock/poultry issues and cropland erosion control across the state.

Funding is provided through the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP), which addresses resource concerns within specific designated geographic priority areas as well as the statewide concerns of livestock and cropland erosion.

ers, federal and state agency representatives, and agriculture organizations — funding of $623,600 is available to treat statewide issues. Contracts are limited to $50,000 per contract.

"We are proud of the successes being recorded throughout Pennsylvania," said Janet Oertly, NRCS state conservationist. "EQIP has been very successful in solving erosion and nutrient management problems within Pennsylvania's 12 geographic priority areas. We wish we had additional funding to provide for statewide concerns."

Farmers should contact their local NRCS office for more information or to apply for funding.

USDA To Educate About Crop Insurance

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman recently announced a new five-year, $25 million initiative to increase risk management education and crop insurance products available to farmers in 15 underserved states.

"This new initiative will help strengthen the farm safety net by educating farmers on the benefits of crop insurance as a tool they can use to help manage risk," said Glickman.

The plan encourages increased crop insurance participation by enhancing risk management education in states with traditionally low levels of

For example, in New Hampshire, about 10 percent of the eligible acres were insured in 1999, while in North Dakota about 90 percent of eligible acres were insured. In keeping with USDA's efforts to support family farms, special emphasis will be to small and limited resource farmers.

USDA will work with local groups around the country — including universities, lenders, insurance providers, and farm lenders — to sponsor seminars, training sessions, and research.

MidAtlantic Farm Credit Hires Marketing V.P.

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Bob Frazee, president and CEO of MidAtlantic Farm Credit, has announced the appointment of Sandy Wieber to vice president of marketing.

Wieber, a native of Berks County, has more than 15 years of experience in marketing and public relations.

"With MidAtlantic Farm Credit's recent consolidation, we felt an expert in the marketing and communications field would help us better serve our members throughout the multi-state area. Sandy has a background in agriculture, and an understanding of the challenges our members face," said Frazee. "We are very excited to have her join our management team."

Wieber comes to MidAtlantic from an information technology company, where she was director of marketing and communications. In this position she implemented communications plans, direct mail programs, developed marketing materials, and managed the company's Website. In addition, she oversaw trade journal advertising, coordinated national trade shows, and created a national public relations campaign.

Under her maiden name Moser, Wieber has been a freelance writer or special correspondent for Pennsylvania Farmer, Lancaster Farming, Farmshine, the Pottstown Mercury, and the Reading Eagle. A resident of Baltimore, Wieber continues to do freelance writing for the Baltimore Sun and has worked as a freelance marketing consultant.

Deere Earnings Double For Year

MOLINE, Ill. — Deere and Company recently reported that its net income more than doubled for the year and showed a sharp improvement for the fourth quarter.

Worldwide net income was $485.5 million, or $2.06 per share, for the year ended Oct. 31, versus $239.2 million, or $1.02 per share, in fiscal 1999.

Net income for the fourth quarter was $71.1 million, or $0.30 per share, compared with a net loss of $29.5 million, or $0.13 per share, for last year's fourth quarter.

"It is gratifying that the company remained solidly profitable for the quarter and registered more than a two-fold increase in earnings for the year," said Robert W. Lane, chairman and chief executive officer. "In spite of weakness in our major markets, we improved profitability, saw an extremely positive customer response to new John Deere products, and brought down field inventories of used farm equipment. As a result, we have set the stage for a further improvement in our performance in the future."

Worldwide net sales and revenues were $3,376 billion for fourth-quarter 2000 and $13.137 billion for the year, compared with $2,788 billion and $11.751 billion, respectively, last year. Net equipment sales increased by 25 percent for the quarter, to $2.842 billion, and by 15 percent, to $11.169 billion, for the year.

Sales rose because of strong customer response to new products, an improved ability to produce equipment at a level equal to retail demand, and the inclusion of Timberjack sales.

These positive factors were partially offset by the effect of weaker European currencies. Overseas net sales were up 20 percent for the quarter, primarily due to the Timberjack-sales inclusion, and eight percent for

Three Named To New Positions With Chore-Time Hog Production Systems

Bryan Shive

MILFORD, Ind. — Three individuals have been named to new positions with Chore-Time Hog Production Systems, according to George Zimmerman, vice president and general manager of the Chore-Time Brock (CTB, Inc.) business unit.

Bryan Shive has been appointed marketing and engineering services manager for Chore-Time Hog Production Systems, and will be responsible for product design, manufacturing engineering, and market planning. He has worked for Chore-Time/STACO since 1991 and held the position of market-

Shive received a bachelor's degree from Messiah College and a master's degree from Evangelical School of Theology, Myerstown.

Barbara Martin has been named controller for Chore-Time Hog Production Systems. She joined the company in 1999 and was accounting supervisor. She was graduated from Millersville University with a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Prior to coming to Chore-Time Brock, Martin worked 13 years for V.J. Martin, Inc., Lebanon, as controller.

Rick Dripps has been named sales and product manager for Chore-Time Hog Production Systems, and will oversee the company's sales efforts in the U.S. and Canada as well as managing new product development. He held the position of product manager.

Dripps has worked for Chore-Time Brock since 1993 and was graduated from Northern Iowa University with a bachelor's degree in business management. He is a native of Reinbeck, Iowa, and still lives in the Reinbeck, Iowa, area.

Claas Introduces New, High-Output 900 Jaguar Self-Propelled Forage Harvester

COLUMBUS, Ind. — Claas of America introduces its powerful, new Jaguar 900 self-propelled forage harvester.

The newest addition to Claas' line of high performance forage harvesters, the 900 is equipped with several heavy-duty features such as a heavy-duty cutting drum, a heavy-duty corn cracker, as well as a new heavy-duty feed roller system.

Equipped with a fuel-efficient Mercedes 500 HP V-8 engine with electronic controlled fuel injection, the 900 can maintain high output in a variety of field conditions. Other new features include automatic overdrive transmission, high capacity cooling system, and a 283-gallon capacity fuel tank.

A spacious cab with improved operator's platform delivers an unobstructed view for the driver during harvest. Controls are easy-to-reach and all harvesting and hydrostatic ground drives are controlled by one multifunc-

programs for the sale of used farm equipment and higher expenses regarding the development of new products and growth initiatives. Last year's results included a $40 million after-tax charge for an early-retirement program.

Excluding interest, taxes and certain other corporate expenses, worldwide equipment operating profit increased significantly, to $83 million for the quarter and $693 million for the year. This is in comparison with a $69 million operating loss for fourth-quarter 1999 and a $272 million operating profit for the full year.

Sales of the worldwide agricultural equipment division continued to show a major year-to-year improvement, rising by 37 percent for the quarter and by 15 percent for the year. At the same time, average assets declined by 11 percent. Operating profit increased to $68 million and $400 million for the quarterly and yearly periods, compared with operating losses of $129 million and $51 million, respectively, in 1999. Operating profit rose because of improved manufacturing efficiencies associated with higher sales and production volumes, as the division was able to better align production schedules with retail sales.

Also aiding results were lower pension and post-retirement health-care costs and the impact of initiatives aimed at quality and efficiency improvement. Selling and administrative expenses and research and development expenses were higher due to growth and other initiatives. These increases, however, were proportional to the year's rise in sales. During the fourth quarter, promotion expenses increased as part of a program that significantly reduced inventories of used equipment held by John Deere dealers in order to better position the company for increased sales volumes in the future.

New Ohio State Food Science Building Concrete Example Of Successful Campaign

COLUMBUS, Ohio — When the Parker Food Science and Technology Building opens in January, it will be an obvious manifestation of the success of the five-year "Share the Vision" development campaign for Ohio State College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences.

The $17 million, 40,000-square-foot facility — serving students, faculty, staff and the food industry, unifies the various food science programs at Ohio State University. The building connects to Howlett Hall — home of the Ohio Food Industries Pilot Plant, which processes fruit and vegetables — and is adjacent to the Animal Sciences building, which houses a meat processing plant.

The new building will feature a new dairy foods pilot plant, enabling students to process fluid milk, produce all varieties of cheese, yogurt and other traditional dairy foods, and investigate new processes, potential new dairy foods or dairy-derived ingredients.

Faculty will move into their new offices in December, and classes will start being offered in the new building in January, for the winter quarter.

The new building was made possible by the "Share the Vision" campaign. When the campaign began in 1995, the original goal was to raise $65.4 million. As the years passed and pledges kept coming in, the college increased its goal to $75 million. When the campaign officially ended this summer, a total of $78.2 million had been raised, said Lynda Heyl, director of development for the college.

The campaign, designed to underwrite the college in numerous areas, was supported by nearly 300 campaign volunteers and countless faculty, staff and administrators in the college, Heyl said. More than 80,000 individual gifts were made to the college over the campaign period.

Although the Parker Building is a concrete example of fundraising efforts, endowments were also a major focus of the campaign. In the last five years, Heyl said, 132 endowments were established, including three endowed chairs, 90 new scholarships or fellowships, and 39 research or program funds. During the campaign period, the college endowment market value increased by more than $76 million, to $117,546,705, she said.

Since the campaign ended, more major gifts have come the college's way. One was the gift of $3 million by university alumnus Thomas L. Parker (B.S., business administration, 1943), which is the largest gift the college has ever received. The gift will support the new building, named in honor of the Parker family, and the Thomas L. Parker Excellence in Dairy Foods Program, which will provide continuous support for research, teaching and outreach in the dairy food arena. Annual income from this endowed fund will support the Thomas L. Parker Distinguished Visitor or the Thomas L. Parker Lecturer; scholarships and fellowships for students enrolled in dairy foods programs; support for student organizations, including the Dairy Foods Judging Team; special programs in the building's dairy food store, including student sensory testing; and annual funding for research in dairy and food engineering, as identified by students, faculty, staff and the dairy industry. The effort will complement the existing J.T. "Stubby" Parker Chair in Dairy Foods, which Parker previously established in memory of his father.

The Parker connection to dairy foods stems back generations, Heyl said. It was I.C. Parker, Thomas L. Parker's uncle and "Stubby's" twin brother, who invented the Drumstick in the late 1920s. Together, the brothers formed the Drumstick Co. to produce and market the ice cream novelty. The building's grand opening celebration will be held in May 2001.

Another major gift was announced in October when the Nationwide Foundation offered the university a five-year grant of more than $4.5 million. Of that grant, $2.4 million supports three initiatives in the college:

- Ohio 4-H Center, creation of centralized program space, $2 million.
- Center for Education and Economic Development (CEED), $300,000.
- Leadership Education and Development (LEAD) Program, $100,000.

Both of these gifts are a part of Ohio State's ongoing fundraising efforts following the success of its five-year, $1.23 billion "Affirm Thy Friendship" Campaign, which concluded on June 30, 2000. The college's "Share the Vision" campaign was part of the university's effort.

FIELD TESTING OF ODOR REDUCTION TECHNOLOGIES ON SWINE OPERATIONS PROGRESS REPORT

Introduction

Urban-rural conflict over large-scale animal agriculture has become commonplace during the past several years. In particular, odors from large swine operations have caused neighbors to complain that they can not enjoy their homes and lives. However, commercial swine producers are reluctant to invest in technology that is often expensive and unproven.

The following study was undertaken, with support from the College of Agricultural Sciences at Penn State, and grants from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. In addition, cooperating farms and companies also contributed time and equipment to these projects.

Objectives

1. Determine the effectiveness and manageability of three odor reducing strategies on selected swine operations in Pennsylvania.
2. Determine physical and personal factors affecting odors scores recorded by neighbors of swine farms.
3. Determine how neighbors and nonneighbors of swine farms perceive large livestock operations.

Procedures

In the summer of 1999, researchers at Penn State, with financial support from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, sought to include neighbors in evaluating three economical strategies for reducing odor complaints from hog farms.

Odors on hog farms arise from three sources: land application of manure, manure storage, and air exhausted from the buildings. In this study, researches attempted to control odors from either air or outside manure storage structures, but not odors associated with spreading manure.

Three odor control techniques were evaluated: biofiltration of exhausted air, dust filtration of exhausted air, and floating biofilters (chopped straw) for outdoor manure storage structures.

Farms for the project were selected based on the practicality of applying the technologies at the specific site, a history of odor conflict in the neighborhood, and operator's willingness to cooperate with the researchers.

Biofiltration Farms

Two 2,000 and one 4,000-pig finishing operation were selected to evaluate biofiltration of exhausted air. Each pit fan (which discharges gases from the under-building manure storage) on all buildings was fitted with a biofilter. Additionally, two of the buildings were equipped with a larger biofilter to capture some of the exhausted air from end wall fans that ventilate the living space for the pigs.

Biofilters were constructed of a layer of wooden pallets lying on the ground covered by a layer of plastic mesh and an eight to 12-inch-deep mixture of finished compost and wood chips. Air exhausted from the building was forced under the pallets and allowed to filter through the compost and wood chip mixture. Bacteria in the compost mixture capture and break down odor-causing compounds. Biofilters require about 80 square feet per 1,000 cubic feet per minute of air moved through the building, so this technology was limited to smaller operations because of physical space requirements.

Dust Filtration Farms

Three fairly large operations were selected for implementing dust filtration technology: one 2,800-sow farrow-to-feeder pig farm, one 1,400 farrow-to-feeder pig farm, and one 10,000-pig finishing site.

On these farms, plastic mesh (shade cloth used in the greenhouse industry) was fashioned into a "windsock" and placed over each fan shroud. It was hoped that the windsocks would cause odor-carrying dust particles to settle more rapidly. Additionally, the socks could potentially disrupt the exhaust stream and help odors to dilute more quickly.

Floating Biofilter Farms

One 300-sow farrow-to-feeder and one 450-sow farrow-to-finish operations were selected for the third technology a floating biofilter of chopped straw for outside manure storage structures. A commercial landscape seeder was hired to apply an eight-inch covering of chopped straw over the open, outdoor manure storage structures on each farm. Odors escaping from the manure storage structures are filtered by the layer of straw in the same manner as that of biofilters connected to exhaust fans.

Evaluation

To evaluate the success of each of the odor reduction technologies, all neighbors within a variable radius (generally less than one mile) of seven of the farms were contacted by mail prior to commencement of the project. Each neighbor received a survey about their perceptions of animal agriculture and other information. In addition, each household received six odor evaluation cards one card to be used each week for a six-week period. The survey included a map of the area and neighbors were asked to mark the location of their homes on the map and return the surveys immediately. The odor evaluation cards were to be filled out each day between the hours of 6 p.m. and midnight. Odor was evaluated on a scale of zero (no odor) to five (intense odor). One of the farms with a straw cover was located near a heavily traveled road, but had few close neighbors. Employees of a local business who regularly traveled the road were contacted to evaluate odor from that site during their drive to and from work.

Approximately midway through the six-week evaluation period, the odor control technologies were installed so odor scores could be compared before and after technology application. Producers at all farm sites were asked to refrain from spreading manure during the period of the study so neighbors would not confuse spreading odors with odors emanating from the site.

During the same time frame, nonneighbors who lived in similar rural settings, but not near large livestock facilities, were identified. These individuals were asked to complete surveys similar to those sent to the neighbors, but without the odor evaluation cards.

Results

Data are still being tabulated, but we can report the following preliminary findings.

Demographic Information

With exception of gender, neighbors and nonneighbors were demographically similar. The neighbors who completed surveys were fairly evenly split between males and females, whereas nonneighbors who completed surveys were predominantly male.

Effectiveness Of Odor Reduction Technologies

Odor scores, in general, were lower than anticipated on the farms. On a scale of zero (no odor) to five (very intense odor), the mean odor score recorded by respondents who returned odor evaluation cards was .85.

For two of the three farms where biofiltration was used, the average odor score declined after installation of the biofilters, and, in one of these cases, the decrease was statistically significant (P less than .05). In addition, although the number of neighbors responding to the farms on which floating biofilters were used was very small, the overall average showed a decline in odor level after the application of this strategy.

Moreover, when standing near the source, our personal observation was that both biofilters and the biocovers were effective in reducing odor levels. As a result, follow-up studies using both of these technologies are planned. The dust filtration "socks" appeared to be ineffective.

Physical And Personal Factors Affecting Odor Scores

The neighbors' location (both distance and direction from the swine unit) impacted the intensity of reported odor. In general, neighbors closer to the swine facility recorded higher scores than those more distant. Neighbors to the east and south recorded higher scores than those living to the west and north. There were also numerous personal factors that affected perceived odor intensity, including:

1. Whether the neighbor knew the operation/manager of the swine facility or not was related to the reported odor level. In general, the more the neighbor was acquainted with the swine producer, the lower the odor scores.

2. Odor ratings were higher if the neighbor could see the swine facility from the road or home than if they were not visible.

3. The more "attractive" the farm was perceived to be, the lower the odor scores. Attractiveness of the farm in question if the farm was perceived as more attractive, lower odor scores were recorded.

4. As reported health rating increased, the lower were the odor scores.

With the factors described above, we could account for about 33 percent of the variation in average odor scores.

There were also a number of personal factors that had little or no impact on odor scores. These included income, gender, age, education, whether the neighbor had been raised on a farm, length of time the neighbor had lived there, and the neighbor's reported knowledge of swine production.

Many neighbors commented on their odor diary cards that the intensity of odor during the study was lower than normal because the swine producer was not spreading manure. We asked all the cooperating producers to postpone manure spreading until after the project so that we could evaluate the impact of the building and/or storages alone. While the comments on manure spreading were unexpected, they do reinforce the concept that land application of manure may generate more odor complaints than the buildings or manure storage facilities.

Neighbor Vs.

Nonneighbor Perceptions

Neighbors and nonneighbors were asked to "agree" or "disagree" with a series of 19 statements dealing with their perceptions of large-scale livestock operations. Of those who responded, the answers of neighbors differed significantly from those of nonneighbors for just five of the items. Neighbors were more likely than nonneighbors to indicate that livestock odors represent a health hazard to people living nearby (47 percent vs. 25 percent); to report that odor from large-scale livestock operations are more offensive than other odors associated with farming (59 percent vs. 40 percent); to disagree that large-scale livestock operations provide the same economic advantage to an area as other industries (68 percent vs. 51 percent); to report that livestock farmers should alter their farming practices to satisfy the desires of nearby residents (74 percent vs. 60 percent); and to believe that large-scale livestock operations reduce the value of nearby residential property (77 percent vs. 64 percent).

For the remaining 14 items, neighbors and nonneighbors did not differ significantly in their pattern of responses. Thus, for example, just over 60 percent of both neighbors and nonneighbors agreed that large-scale livestock operations use environmentally sound practices to prevent water pollution. Nevertheless, nearly the same percentage reported that they believed that animal wastes from large-scale livestock operations pollute nearby surface and ground water (65 percent), pollute local water supplies (63 percent), and that governmental controls and site inspections do not eliminate the likelihood that such operations will pollute local water supplies (61 percent).

Two-thirds (67 percent) believed that large-scale livestock always produce odors that are obnoxious to people living nearby and that people living in the country should expect livestock odors as part of country living (78 percent). However, 64 percent reported that they did not agree that livestock farmers should have the right to farm without local restriction, and 66 percent believed that large-scale livestock operations should not be permitted near residential areas. More than three-fourths of both neighbors and nonneighbors agreed that spreading manure from large-scale livestock operations on farmland will enhance the quality of the soil and only about one in five believe that the application of large amounts of manure from intensive livestock operations contaminate the soil, making it useless for other agricultural purposes. Thus, while there were some striking differences between neighbors and nonneighbors in the perception of large-scale livestock operations, there were also quite a number of areas of agreement.

When respondents were asked to rate their overall health status, the scores of neighbors and nonneighbors were identical (4.1 on a scale of 1 not very healthy to 5 very healthy). But when asked about specific medical symptoms, neighbors indicated they experienced cough, nausea, fatigue, and throat irritation more often (P less than .05) than nonneighbors. There were no significant differences between the two groups in regard to frequency of headaches, muscular aches, chest tightness, depression, or anxiety.

The challenge aspect of these observations is that the health score and symptoms are self-rated and therefore may be subject to some bias, particularly if the neighbors regard the local swine operation as a source of conflict. To provide further analysis of the health symptoms, we calculated correlation coefficients between distance from the farm, and health score and all health symptoms. For health score and eight of the nine symptoms, there was no significant relationship (P greater than .20) between the frequency of symptom and the distance from the operation. One correlation (muscular aches) approached significance (P less than .075). If the cause of the symptoms were the facility, then one would expect neighbors living close to the farm would have observed the symptoms more frequently than those living further away, but this was not the case.

To provide further insight into the health symptom observations, we calculated correlation coefficients between the neighbors' reported desire not to live in this location, and the same health symptoms. In this analysis, the frequency of nausea, headache, muscular aches, chest tightness, fatigue, throat irritation, depression and anxiety were all positively correlated (P less than .01) with the neighbors' desire to live somewhere else because of the swine facility. Similarly, health score was negatively correlated (P less than .05). Therefore, it appears that the neighbors' health scores and reported frequency of health symptoms may be related to dissatisfaction with their location, rather than to distance from the swine operation.

A sizable majority of the neighbors indicated that the large-scale swine operation located nearby impacted on their lifestyles in various ways. A third (33 percent) reported that they had often modified their outdoor plans because of odor from the facility, 18 percent had often decided to not invite friend in because of the odor, six percent thought that the odor from the facility often made them ill, and 22 percent reported that they often wished that they didn't live in their current location because of the presence of the swine facility. About 85 per-

Test To Beat The SCN Pest

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio State University's soybean cyst nematode (SCN) sampling program entered a new phase Oct. 1, when the C. Wayne Ellett Plant and Pest Diagnostic Clinic reinstated the fee for testing soil samples for SCN.

Compared to other soybean pests, the SCN is relatively new to Ohio, so the clinic was processing samples free in the past two years to raise awareness of the threat. The Ohio Soybean Council funded this free program by using soybean checkoff dollars.

Clinic coordinator Nancy Taylor said the awareness campaign was a success in that 7,924 samples were tested, of which 49 percent were found to contain detectable levels of SCN eggs. The program found detectable levels of SCN in 61 of Ohio's 88 counties, Taylor said.

"We thought at the beginning of the program we'd receive about 600 samples in the first year. Instead, we received 3,500," Taylor said. "Well into the second year, we had received well over 6,000 samples."

Now that the awareness campaign has achieved its goal, the next step is for farmers to regularly monitor fields for SCN levels, Taylor said. Regular monitoring is important to check for changes in low levels of SCN infestations and to see if management programs are reducing severe infestations.

How often to test depends on two factors: whether SCN is present and the crop rotation schedule. Here are some OSU guidelines:

- Fields in three-year rotation and with zero to low populations, should be tested once every 10 years

- Fields in a two-year rotation, and with zero to low populations, should be sampled every five years

- Fields with high populations should be sampled before each soybean crop to ensure populations dropped sufficiently during the years in non-host crops

- Fields not in rotation and planted in SCN-resistant soybeans — which is not recommended — should be sampled every fall.

"The soybean cyst nematode will not disappear, but with a good rotation schedule, use of SCN-resistant varieties where appropriate, and regular soil sampling to monitor SCN populations, yield losses may be minimized," Taylor said.

The testing fees are as follows. For a single shipment of soil samples from an individual farm, the fee is $15 for the first samples and $10 for each additional soil sample. Make out checks to "The Ohio State University."

Send samples to C. Wayne Ellett Plant and Pest Diagnostic Clinic, 110 Kottman Hall, 2021 Coffey Road, Ohio State University, Columbus, OH 43210-1087. Producers with questions about sampling or packing procedures can call the clinic at (614) 292-5006.

cent of the neighbors reported that the swine facility had been established since they moved there, and an additional four percent indicated that, while the facility had been there when they moved, they did not know of its existence. Most 68 percent of the neighbors reported that they had complained to friends about the odor, but only 31 percent had ever expressed their concerns to the facility operator.

Summary

1. Effectiveness of Odor Abatement Technology. Dust filtration appeared to be ineffective. Biofiltration of exhausted air was effective on one farm, and based on our personal observations, appears to have potential for reducing odors from pit fans. Floating biofilters also appeared to be effective at the manure storage site, but the improvement was not detectable by neighbors in this study.

2. Physical and Personal Factors Affecting Odor Scores. Odor scores recorded by neighbors of swine operations, on average, were fairly low. As expected, both distance and direction affected perceived odor intensity. Odor scores were also affected by a number of personal factors, including how well the neighbor knew the swine producer, the attractiveness of the farm, the respondent's health status, whether the swine facility could be seen from their home.

3. Perception of Large-Scale Animal Agriculture by Neighbors and Nonneighbors. Results varied, but where there were differences, neighbors were more likely to have negative beliefs associated with livestock production than were nonneighbors. In addition, neighbors cited a higher incidence of health symptoms (specifically cough, nausea, fatigue, and throat irritation).

Implications

The present study demonstrated that biofiltration of air exhausted from swine facilities has the potential to reduce odor intensity perceived by nearby neighbors. We are continuing to modify the design of biofilters and to evaluate their effectiveness in follow-up studies. While this project addressed odors emitted only from building and manure containments, a study is planned for September 2000 to examine the effectiveness and economic feasibility of manure dehydration, which could significantly reduce the odors associated with manure storage and application.

Neighbors living near these cooperating farms cited a higher incidence of certain health symptoms, and they also tended to have more negative feelings associated with livestock production than did nonneighbors. The health symptoms were self-reported, which are subject to some bias, but it appears that the lifestyle of many of the respondents was negatively impacted in various ways. This underscores the need to quickly identify effective solutions to manure odors, and for swine producers to maintain good community relations until technology improves.

USDA Announces Agribusiness Investment Mission To Baltics

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. agribusinesses wishing to explore investment and business opportunities in the Baltic countries should mark their 2001 daybooks.

An investment and trade mission, with ample networking opportunities, is accepting applications now.

The mission, sponsored by the USDA will cover Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania Feb. 3-12. The trip has 10 openings, and the deadline for applications is Jan. 12.

Medium-sized companies are encouraged to apply, but all agribusinesses are welcome. The program is open to producers of lumber, dairy products, fish, cattle, fruits, and vegetables. Producers of value-added goods such as greenhouse and nursery products, processed meats and foods, bakery products, beer, wine, and soft drinks are also excellent candidates.

Participants will have interpreters and a chance to meet with pre-screened strategic or financial partners in the host countries. There will be briefings from U.S. embassy and trade officials, and opportunities to meet with local government and banking officials. Travel in country and some meals will also be provided.

Delegation members must pay their own international travel and certain additional costs. Coordinators in USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service encourage interested executives to make preparations soon to allow time for obtaining passports and making other travel arrangements.

U.S. exports of agricultural, fish, and forestry products to the Baltic states totaled $284 million in 1999, compared with $170 million in 1998. Major U.S. products in the market were red meats, tree nuts, and poultry.

To participate in the mission, contact Jim O'Meara, Mission Coordinator, USDA/FAS, (202) 690-2895, fax (202) 690-3982, or e-mail Omearej@fas.usda.gov.

Waterbeds for Cows

A member of the Poly Group of Companies

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE

The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 12-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE

The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE

Here's What Some of Your Neighbors Say About Alanta Waterbeds:

Dale Hindman, Brockway, PA

"We have seen a big savings in the amount of bedding we use and I believe the durability of the beds will be excellent over time."

Harlan Hoover, Oley, PA

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?

Consider a Mueller pre-cooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

BEEF TIPS

Pennsylvania bull test results on average

The 1999/2000 Pennsylvania bull test included data on breed backfat as a component of total weight put on the animals. The Simmental bulls averaged 3.5 pounds per day of age while having the highest percentage meat and the lowest percentage of fat. The 28 Simmental bulls in the test averaged only .21 inches of backfat. (Hereford averaged .37 inches, while Angus averaged .38 inches.) Ask your local Simmental breeder if he has a calving ease bull for you to use on your British genetics. Studies show that your profit will rise with higher weaning weights and higher cutability numbers by using Simmental genetics.

the profitable liquid feed

They'll give it right back to you, with interest, in:

- Healthier Calves
- More Economical Production
- Better Reproduction Performance

PRO-LIX delivers the protein, vitamins and minerals your cattle need-when they need it and in the amounts they need. It increases cattle weight, fosters healthier calves and often helps to produce more calves. PRO-LIX is an extremely smart investment in the beef or milk that produces your profits-all year long.

Attention

Dairy, Swine & Poultry Producers!

New Products Now Available...

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer these products to meet your nutritional needs. Manufacturing these products ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

GOLDEN PRO 46 XP

This natural, mechanically extruded and expelled soybean product is experiencing great acceptance with local dairymen. A course golden colored meal with a 6% fat content, Golden Pro 46 XP is extremely palatable. Golden Pro 46 XP is a natural way to bring the value of high by-pass protein into diets that require a lower fat level.

GOLDEN MEAL 40

An 18 percent fat content along with a 40 percent crude protein makes this mechanically extruded meal product a valuable component in a variety of rations. Full fat content gives you a high level of digestible energy, while high temperature extruding ruptures the oil cells for better nutritional absorptions.

CRUDE SOYBEAN OIL

A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. A natural alternative to animal fats, this oil provides needed energy in various rations.

Soybean Exchange Program

As manufacturers and distributors of Golden Pro 46 XP and Golden Meal 40, we are anxious for you to try our products. We are offering a soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.
